City Hall—Let's Try the Positive View

THERE ARE two ways to look at the city hall situation in the wake of Wednesday's apparently successful bid opening.

It's easy to take the "gloomy Gus" attitude on it.

Arguments like:

It's being built in the middle of no-man's land. No one will go down there. It's the end of the world.

The cops won't be able to make it up the Broadway Hill in the middle of winter (as if the cops hang around the police station in their cars all day waiting for calls.)

It's going to cost millions of dollars (the cost probably will run well over a million, figuring in the interest on the bond issue.)

Nobody's going to build anything next to a city hall.

Urban Renewal stinks.

We've heard it all before. Maybe it's time to look at the brighter side of things.

ALBERT MILLIKEN did a class 'A' job in figuring the cost of the building. It might be kept in mind that Milliken's figures were drawn up almost a year ago, before the Council passed the $900,000 bond issue in June.

Maybe the city hall will restore faith in the Downtown area. After all, the Urban Development Corporation wants to build down there. The fact that the city is also willing to take a chance in Broadway East must have been a factor.

Most of the aldermen, the mayor and the alderman-at-large are in favor of it. It can't be all wrong. Those guys are practicing politicians. They have to stand for reelection.

The city hall is going downtown at what city officials figure is a reasonable cost. It should be a time for joy, not gloom.

* * * * *

BEFORE THE BIDS — We always look forward to seeing Ray Garraghan. True, he fights with everybody but just about everybody who gets to know him gets to like him.

The "Money Man" was in his glory at the opening of the bids for the new city hall Wednesday. We spotted him with pad and pencil (what else?) with a front row seat in the city courtroom.

He's grown in stature since leaving city hall, particularly around the waistline ("Whataya mean? I've lost 10 pounds. I run a hundred yards every day.")

The ex-mayor apparently knew (or guessed) something about the bids that no one else knew.

We asked him before the bids were opened about his estimates of the cost. "$932,000," he shot back. "Don't forget that we paid the architect $10,000 out of last year's budget. That doesn't count on the bond issue."

Apparently Ray wasn't all that confident. But shortly after he put his money where his mouth was.

Al Yosman, the director of the Kingston Housing Authority, stopped by.

"Hi, Ray. What do you think?" . . . Garraghan told him.

"I figure a million, three," Yosman said. "But I hope you're right."

Garraghan offered a wager. Both men put up a quarter. Score another basket for Raymond W.

THE AUDIT — Not being blessed with an accounting degree, we're not quite sure what the state's audit of the city's books for the years 1965 through 1968 really means.

One thing appears certain, however. No one is in jail so things couldn't have been that bad.

There was one alderman, whose name we will not mention, due mainly to a sudden burst of Christian charity, who used to call us up every day when the auditors were in town last year checking the books.

The conversations used to go something like this: Alderman (on phone): Pssst . . . Hey, hey, hey . . . hubba hubba ding ding . . . Did you hear the latest? The auditors are here. They're gonna hang that Garraghan . . . hubba hubba.

"Yeah, I know, they've been here for three weeks."

THREE WEEKS . . . Man oh man. They're really digging. What do you hear?

"Nothing, yet. Have to wait until they make their report."

"Yeah, you're right. Boy, wait until that report comes out. It'll be dynamite. It'll rock this town. We're gonna really blast him. Just wait.

"Hey, listen. I've got a hot item for that column of yours. Whataya call it?"

"City Beat."

"City Street? What kind of a name is that?"

"City Beat."

"Oh yeah. I read it all the time. Great column. Can't wait to get that paper on Wednesday."

"But listen. Remember, you don't know where this came from. No, I can't tell you where I got it. Great source, though."

(At this point the voice drops to a whisper) "I heard that Garraghan stashed $300,000 in the attic in city hall last year and the pigeons ate it."

"You don't say. Sounds like a hot item for a radio commentary."

"You don't believe me?"

"Nope."

"Well, you can bet on this. We're gonna blast Garraghan when that audit comes out. Just wait."

We're waiting.

Spacemen to Meet Families

A Happy Journey

ABOARD USS IWO JIMA (AP) — Back safely from space after a four-day battle for life, the Apollo 13 astronauts journey today toward a reunion with their families and the congratulations of their President.

Astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., John L. Swigert Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. flew today to Hawaii for a reunion tonight with their familes and President Nixon.

The President, in a statement Friday after Apollo 13's flight ended, said, "A relieved nation says, 'Welcome Home.' "

He also declared Sunday a national day of prayer and thanksgiving for the astronauts' safe return.

The spacemen rested Friday night after bringing their Apollo command ship to an on-target landing in the South Pacific, splashing down within sight of this carrier and worldwide television cameras.

Their return ended a desperate drama which began Monday night when an explosion racked their spacecraft as they headed toward the moon. It took away much of their electricity and canceled their moon-landing plans.

Apollo 13 left the immediate future of Apollo 14—originally scheduled for October—in doubt.

"It's not definitely off for October, but it certainly isn't definitely on for October," said space agency Administrator Thomas O. Paine.

He said a review board will study Apollo 13's problems. Paine indicated it was "too early to speculate" on the launch date of Apollo 14 until the source of the oxygen tank rupture is determined.

Doctors who examined the astronauts on board this carrier reported Friday night that Haise had a urinary tract infection and a low grade fever.

Dr. Keith Baird, a space agency doctor, said, however, the astronauts were in generally good health.

Dr. Baird also said the astronauts were more exhausted than any previous space crew he had examined. Each had lost 5 to 10 pounds, he said. He said they had suffered from the 40 to 45 degree temperature in their spacecraft and had had little sleep.

The final hours in space of Lovell, Haise and Swigert included a complex series of maneuvers to jettison the crippled service module which imperiled the astronauts and the lunar lander which had been their life boat.

As they jettisoned the service module, the astronauts got a look at the ruined craft and told Mission Control, "It's really a mess."

"There is one whole side missing," said Lovell, "almost from the base of the engine. There's a dark brown streak down the side."

"Looks like a lot of debris is just hanging off the side," he noted.

"Man, that's unbelievable," said Mission Control.

The explosion of an oxygen tank in the service module Monday night had forced the astronauts to depend upon the small, attached lunar lander, Aquarius, for life-sustaining supplies of oxygen, water and electricity.

The astronauts jettisoned the lunar module at the last possible moment.

The moon lander hit the Pacific Ocean within minutes and sank, after crumpling and burning on the way down.

The command ship then continued toward the earth alone with its astronaut passengers. It landed with a precision which had become routine on previous Apollo flights. Helicopters from this carrier quickly hovered overhead and swimmers jumped into the rolling ocean.

The swimmers' first words were to Swigert: "There's an IRS (Internal Revenue Service) agent on board waiting to see you."

The reference was to the failure of Swigert, a last-minute replacement on the flight crew, to file an income tax return.

A band greeted the spacemen by playing "The Age of Aquarius."

Cmdr. R. J. Hjerauld, the ship's chaplain, then offered a prayer of gratitude for their return.

The astronauts bared their heads and bowed as he prayed, "O Lord, we joyfully welcome back to earth astronauts Lovell, Haise and Swigert, who, by Your grace, their skill, the skill of many men, survived the dangers encountered in their mission and returned to us safe and whole. We offer our humble thanksgiving for this successful recovery."

A Grateful Nixon Will Honor Astros

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon left today for Hawaii to honor the Apollo 13 astronauts by presenting them with the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian award.

He is making the trip by way of Houston, where he will present the same award to the ground crew that handled the Apollo 13 mission.

The President, accompanied by Mrs. Nixon, took off in the presidential plane, Air Force 1, from Andrews Air Force Base in nearby Maryland at 9 a.m. EST. He arrived at Ellington Air Force Base, Houston, at 11:45 a. m. EST.

Sigurd A. Sjoberg, director of flight operations, Manned Spacecraft Center, Houston, will accept the medal from the President on behalf of the crew of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Nixon decided to give the astronauts the medal, the White House said, after he saw the successful splashdown of the embattled Apollo 13 spacecraft Friday.

Nixon watched the splashdown in a room next to his White House office along with former astronauts Michael Collins and William A. Anders.

"He broke out in spontaneous applause when he first saw the astronauts' parachutes on television," Anders told newsmen afterwards. "The President was certainly relieved that the crew got back safely."

Nixon himself announced the trip to Houston and Hawaii.

"There are no adjectives that can be added at this time," he told newsmen. "I thought the most exciting day of my life was the day I was elected President of the United States.

"But there is no question in my mind that for me, personally, this is the most exciting, the most meaningful day that I have ever experienced," Nixon said.

Immediately after splashdown, Nixon telephoned the wives of astronauts Lovell and Haise and the mother of bachelor Swigert. He will pick up Mrs. Lovell and Mrs. Haise in Houston and take them and Swigert's parents to Hawaii.

President Nixon makes his fourth broadcast to the nation Monday night on his efforts to scale down U. S. involvement in Vietnam. Story on page 14.

He also proclaimed Sunday as a National Day of Prayer and Thanksgiving.

Nixon talked to the astronauts after they boarded the carrier.

When the capsule was safely back to earth, Nixon issued a statement which said: "For much of mankind, the reaches of space had never seemed so infinitely remote as they did when Apollo 13 was crippled nearly a quarter of a million miles from Earth, headed toward the Moon.

Collins quoted Nixon as saying he did not believe the problems encountered by Apollo 13 should prevent future space exploration.

$28 Million for Private Schools

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — New York State will reimburse parochial and other non-public schools $28 million in the next school year for "services" they are required to perform in such areas as record-keeping and testing.

The non-public schools, many of them pleading for state help to meet their financial problems, were assured of this support Friday, under legislation that sailed through both houses of the legislature.

Gov. Rockefeller backed the bill, and his signature—expected today—was a formality.

While some legislators warned in floor debate that this step could spur a proliferation of new private schools, to the detriment of public education, many of the lawmakers said they were voting for the measure reluctantly because it did not do enough for needy non-public schools.

Thus, senators and assemblymen who cast "yes" votes prefaced this with remarks that the bill was a necessary, but only small, step toward preserving the state's dual system of education.

The Assembly completed action first, by a vote of 125-21. The Senate concurred three hours later, 46-9.

Under terms of the bill, accredited non-public schools would be reimbursed 15 cents a day for each pupil in grades 1 through 6 and 25 cents a day for each student in grades 7 through 12 to cover services that all schools in New York must perform.

This works out to $27 a year for pupils in the lower grades and $45 for those in the upper grades, based on the standard 180-day school year. If, for example, a parochial high school has 1,000 students, it will receive $45,000 in the 1970-71 school year.

Meanwhile, the leaders of the adjournment-bound legislature had the votes all lined up today to assure passage of the new Republican-drawn fiscal plan, featuring off-track horse race betting and local lotteries.

Action on the legislation was delayed, however, by snags in drafting of the bills. There was uncertainty as to whether the measures would be brought to a vote today or Sunday.

Assembly Speaker Perry B. Duryea and Senate Majority Leader Earl W. Brydges were pointing the 1970 legislature toward final adjournment Sunday night, if possible, but—they conceded—more likely Monday afternoon.

Agreement on the plan to provide a hefty chunk of additional state aid for New York City and other communities in the state removed the last major obstacle in the legislature's path.

The GOP leaders' task became considerably less difficult Friday when the Democratic minority leaders declared they would support the state-aid settlement—which also includes a variety of tax adjustments to help New York City balance its budget.

Senate Minority Leader Joseph Zaretzki and Assembly Minority Leader Stanley Steingut predicted that most of their members would join the Republicans in voting for the fiscal package.

Zaretzki said he particularly liked the provision that would channel $246.6 million from state income tax revenues to local communities across the state.

"It's great," Zaretzki said.

Details on the nature of the betting and lottery plans were slow in coming. Rockefeller's office declined to elaborate on the plans until drafting of the bills was complete, and that was not expected until sometime today.

Police Press Probe Of Area Burglaries

KINGSTON

Kingston State Police BCI officers and city detectives pressed their search today for what is believed to be "a pair of local safe crackers" who broke into five area establishments Thursday night and early Friday morning and made off with loot estimated in the thousands of dollars.

One owner, Julie Miron of Miron Building Products at 60 Ferry Street, has established a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for breaking into the lumber company offices on Ferry Street and Island Dock Lumber Company on Abeel Street. "Information can be furnished to area police and the source will remain confidential," Miron said.

Miron's and Island Dock may have been the hardest hit. Reportedly electrical tools and household appliances were taken along wth "a large amount of cash."

Police authorities, who have been working around the clock on the robberies, said today, "We think it might be a couple of local guys who did it. We've got every available man working on it."

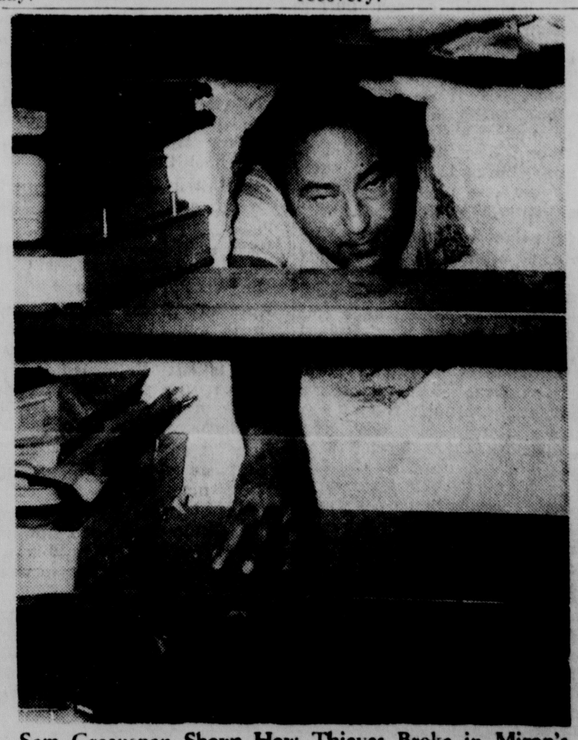

Also hit were the Morgan Linen Company on Hasbrouck Avenue for cash estimated at $400 to $500. Weidy's Furniture on Rt. 28 was also broken into during the spree and reports that $670 in cash is missing. Jennings Construction Company on Rt. 28 was also entered. Owners reported an electric typewriter missing.

Meanwhile, in Walden, two men were arrested last night for allegedly committing a burglary in that village last month.

Robert Fitzgerald, 22, of the Eagle Hotel and John F. Foster, III, 23, of Montgomery Street, both of Walden, were arrested for allegedly stealing a color television set from the home of Richard Sherman of Walden on the night of March 23.

The pair appeared before Lloyd Town Justice Louis DeStasi last night and were remanded to the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $1,000 bail each for a court appearance on Tuesday.

The case was investigated by Walden Police Chief Edward Sutherland, Town of Shawangunk Constable Kenneth Berryann and Highland State Police BCI Investigator Wayne Beyea.

Passover Starts Monday, Marked by Symbolic Rites

KINGSTON

The Festival of Passover will be observed by the Jewish people beginning Monday evening and continuing through Tuesday, April 28.

Conservative and Orthodox Jews celebrate the first days of the holiday Tuesday and Wednesday and the last days Monday and Tuesday, April 27 and 28. Reform Jews celebrate Tuesday, April 21 and Monday April 27.

The Passover festival is observed as a commemoration of the historic events which resulted in the nationhood of the people of Israel, 3,200 years ago.

Passover has several connotations. It is called the Festival of Spring, as it is the first holiday to fall in this season, and agriculturally, it was observed as the season of planting. It is also called the Festival of Pesach, which in Hebrew means "pass over," referring to the passing over by the Angel of Death of the houses of the Israelites.

It is also called the Festival of Freedom, as it was on this day that the Hebrews were freed from slavery in Egypt. It is also called the Festival of Matzos, or unleavened bread, since matzos are to be eaten during all the days of the holiday.

Besides the religious services held in the synagogues, a religious service is held in the home, around festive tables, covered with symbolic foods and condiments to symbolize the incidents in the Passover event. This service is called the Passover Seder, performed by the head of the house, according to a special order of ritualistic observances, therefore the word "seder", which means order.

The youngest child at the table asks four questions concerning the particular observances, and the answers are given in the narration of the Passover story from a special religious tome called the Haggadah, and in the performance of various rituals. A sumptuous feast is served with the matzos, and four cups of wine are imbibed, each one representing ones of the four verses in the Book of Exodus which express the thoughts of freedom and liberation.

A cup of wine is also set for Elijah the prophet, who is awaited as the harbinger of the coming of the Messiah, and the door is opened during that part of the service to welcome him. The opening of the door is also a sign of welcome for all strangers who wish to come to partake of the Passover Feast.

A special service is also held on the morning before the Passover Eve, called for the redemption of the first-born, to commemorate the sanctification of the first-born of the Israelites, when the first-born of the Egyptians were slain.

A model Passover Seder will be held for the children of the Talmud Torah of Kingston in the auditorium of Congregation Ahavath Israel, 100 Lucas Avenue, Sunday, 10:30 a.m. This service will be conducted by the children, and the meal will be served by the members of the Talmud Torah Board.

Religious Services will be held at Congregation Ahavath Israel, at 100 Lucas Avenue, according to the following schedule:

Monday at 7 a.m., for the redemption of the first-born; Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evening, April 20, 21 and 22, at 6:45 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday 9:30 a.m. Every weekday 7 p.m.

Friday, April 24, a late service at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 25, at 9:30 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. Sunday, April 26, 10 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, April 27 and 28, at 9:30 a.m. and 6:45 p.m. Tuesday morning, April 28, a Yizkor (Memorial) Service will be conducted at 11 a.m.

Youth services will be conducted every holiday morning at 10 a.m. in the main sanctuary.

At Congregation Agudas Achim the Passover schedule will be as follows:

Search of Chometz, Sunday night; Seeyum of First Born Monday 7 a.m.; Erev Pesach Services Monday 6:45 p.m.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Pesach Services 8:30 a.m. and 6:45 p.m.

Sunday, April 26, 6:50 p.m.; Monday, April 27, 8:30 a.m. and 6:50 p.m. Tuesday, April 28, 8:30 a.m. including Yizkor and evening service at 6:50.

Passover morning services will be held at Temple Emanuel Tuesday 10 a.m. Rabbi Jonathan Eichhorn will speak on The Chains of Freedom. Concluding Passover Yizkor services will be conducted Sunday, April 25 at 7:30 p.m.

In keeping with the Jewish holiday, Mayor Francis R. Koenig has extended best wishes for a "most happy and joyous Passover," on behalf of the City of Kingston.

Clerical Dropouts—Why?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Each year, several thousand men leave the Catholic priesthood or the Protestant ministry.

Most of these clerical dropouts are highly trained, and once they also were highly motivated.

What causes them to abandon their chosen careers?

People who like simplistic answers have a ready explanation: Catholic priests quit because they want to get married. Protestant ministers because they want to make more money.

Beyond doubt, these motives do play a part in some clergy defections. But they certainly are not the only reasons, and perhaps are not even the major reasons, why clergymen leave the service of the church.

Studies Held Make Clear

Several recent studies have helped to make this clear.

The United Church of Christ commissioned a team of social scientists to make a two-year study of men who have dropped out of the ministry. Depth interviews with 370 ex-pastors revealed that the most common reason for leaving was a strong sense of inadequacy. Seventeen per cent of the ex-pastors said they felt they just weren't able to measure up, personally or professionally, to the enormous demands of their calling.

The next most common reason, cited by 15 per cent, was inability to relocate when necessary. In most Protestant denominations, clergy placement is left to a haphazard system.

"Family problems" were mentioned by 13 per cent of the ex-pastors as the dominant cause of their departure from the ministry. While family problems may include the domestic tensions generated by a chronic lack of money, it is significant that only a small per cent of the dropouts said financial pressures were the main reason why they felt impelled to seek other careers.

Interviews 100 priests

A Harvard psychiatrist, Dr. James J. Gill, interviewed 100 Catholic priests who have left the active ministry. Although most of them have married, Gill concluded it was not libido but low morale which drove them to defeat.

They feel that they are taken for granted, and that their hard work and sacrifices are neither recognized nor appreciated. Their emotional frustration makes them highly vulnerable to the appeal of a sensitive and sympathetic woman.

Another factor, highlighted by all studies of the problem, is the demoralization which has been caused among the clergy by the currently fashionable practice of putting down "the institutional church."

There are laws against cruelty to animals. Perhaps we need at least a moratorium on cruelty to clergymen.

They presented a varied program of folk music. A number of their songs including the theme, Diversity United, have been composed by Donna Gallman, leader of the group.

Lecture Series

A series of lectures by Brother John Malich, FMS, of the Theology Department of Marist College, Poughkeepsie, will be given at St. Mary's Hall, Ellenville, Wednesday, April 22, Sunday, April 26 and Sunday, May 3. Talks will begin at 7:30 p.m. followed by coffee break and discussion period.

Topics will be on current theological thinking regarding the humanity of Christ and will include a discourse on the miracles. The public may attend.

Businessmen Seek Meeting On New Garage

KINGSTON

Members of the Uptown Businessmen's Association are asking for a meeting with urban renewal officials and designers of the new parking garage on North Front Street in an effort to work out differences between the agency and the businessmen on the garage.

Stanley London, president of the businessmen's association, says that meetings have been held between various members of the businessmen's association and James G. Connors, urban renewal executive director and Henry Millonig, agency chairman, but that the businessmen have been denied the opportunity to meet with the designers and the full agency.

The businessmen are opposed to the location of the elevator and further note that the elevator does not service the ground floor of the garage.

They also raise questions about the proposed traffic flow. London summarized his association's viewpoint by saying, "We want the garage to be successful. In order to be successful it has to be functional for both pedestrians and drivers. We want to discuss our recommendations with the designers and the agency."

Connors was not available for comment. Reportedly, he was out of town on business on Friday. The businessmen met Friday morning at the Holiday Inn.

Paltz Hearing: Lone Resident Attends

By SHANE CROSBY

NEW PALTZ

A hearing on the proposed imposition of a tax on utilities serving the village was held here Friday evening with one lone resident attending and commenting on the plan that would make New Paltz the second village in Ulster County to have such a law.

Village officials delayed voting on the measure that would impose a one per cent tax on the gross income of the New York Telephone Company and the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. until a later date, but expectations are that they will adopt the tax.

After a 20-minute reading of the proposal—similar to one adopted by the nearby village of Rosendale last year—Mayor Henry DuBois opened the hearing to comments from the utilities and any interested persons attending.

A letter from the New York Telephone Company was read to the board telling them that the tax would result in a "hidden tax" on telephone users "in the long run." The letter, signed by Arthur J. Roy of the telephone company's public relations office, said the utility is "vitally interested in the financial needs of the community . . . however, (the company) is already saddled with an unfair tax burden."

Roy said the telephone company has "the state's largest tax bill" and said that out of every dollar received, 30 cents goes to tax payments.

Little comment, other than technical questions regarding dates for filing the tax were received from Central Hudson officials who also responded by letter.

The lone resident who attended, John McElhenney, who said he was "deeply interested in this community" opposed the tax plan saying it aims itself to a single segment of the community—the utilities—and "singles out a business (Central Hudson) whose competition is more active every day."

McElhenney, who later said he is not "fighting the village board" and is in agreement with the board "many times," added that "I question whether this tax is morally right."

Mayor DuBois and other village officials admitted they could not begin to estimate the amount of the tax that would have to be paid by the two utlities if the law is enacted, but newly elected trustee John Logan noted that the village af Rosendale, while being smaller than New Paltz, claimed it would be entitled to about $1,500 a year.

Logan added that the village of Rosendale has only been able to collect about $300, and said the difference is due to the refusal of the utilities to pay the tax there until the village supplies them with the proper filing forms.

Regarding the telephone company, Logan said a "formula" would have to be worked out because it is impossible to determine the exact amount of income that is covered by the tax.

The tax applies itself to "wholly consumated" services inside the village, meaning that the only telephone monies that can be taxed are those that came from calls that originated and ended within the village. That would include the village and town exchanges, that Logan said are "impossible" to tell apart. A formula, he said, would have to be arrived at between the village and the company, estimating the amount to be taxed.

The tax became available to villages the size of New Paltz and Rosendale after the state legislature amended the village law to allow municipalities with under 5,000 population to join with larger villages that have been eligible to impose the tax for a number of years. Logan said the tax law goes as far back as the early 1930's.

If passed after some technical changes are considered by the village attorney at the suggestion of Central Hudson tax experts, the new tax would go into effect on May 1 and would cover one year periods with the first paymens expected the following May, according to the proposal.

Rosendale Holds Budget Hearing

ROSENDALE

The Rosendale Village Board received the "citizen's approval" of the proposed budget of $51,630, a decrease of $4,663 over last year's budget, according to Mayor Carl Grassi.

Approximately 15 people attended Friday night's budget hearing and according to Grassi there is "no need to vote on it (the budget)" until May 1.

The budget decreases the tax rate from $12.80 last year to $12.39 per thousand this year. The anticipated amount to be raised by taxes is $40,046.50 and $11,783 from other sources.

The cost of increasing the village's water capacity by cleaning out the still pond was included in the water budget amounting to $28,070. It was estimated that it will cost about $5,000 to clean the still pond.

Grassi said that the board will probably vote on the budget on April 21.

Tiny Tips

Slacks Slimming Down

Slacks are slimming down this year. Put away your superflared bell-bottoms, and look for more tailored, tapered lines for spring.

Milk 'In Space'

When astronauts speed into space, milk products go along for the ride. Cheese cake, custard, and peach and cottage cheese bars are among the items specially prepared for space travelers. Cream soups and whole milk are also prepared in dry form.

Stresses Slenderness

Now that the midi is on the scene, some women think they can relax about the shape their legs are in. Not so. The midi stresses a slender frame, and heavy legs peeking out from midi hems are just as unappealing as heavy legs popping out of mini hems. By the way, save your minis at least through the spring and summer, then look for a big midi surge in fall fashions.

Passover 1970—Its Services and Foods

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

On Monday, the Jewish community will celebrate the Festival of Passover — the liberation of the Children of Israel from Egyptian bondage.

It is a beautiful and proud tradition.

In homes across the land, the table will become the gathering place to commemorate the "passing over" of the Lord in sparing the children of Israel when, by the tenth plague, he smote the first-born of the Egyptians, and for the Jews' exodus from Egyptian slavery.

In a message to his congregation, Rabbi Howard Gershon of Agudas Achim ssaid:

"In today's troubled world, human conflicts are prevalent in all parts of the globe and much of the world's population still lives under the yoke of slavery and oppression. It is precisely at this most crucial moment in the world crisis that all men must learn, understand, and practice the eternal truism that all men, regardless of race, color and religion, are created in the 'image of God,' thus possessing certain inalienable rights which cannot be denied them. No human being can exploit, enslave, or oppress others.

"As we are about to celebrate the Passover Holiday, let us pray that under divine guidance the day will soon dawn when every man will take his brother's hand with loving-kindness and walk the road leading to freedom, liberty and peace for all. May the biblical words inscribed on the American Liberty Bell ring loud and clear for all to hear — Proclaim liberty throughout the land to the inhabitants thereof."

Table Setting

For the Jewish home, best table service, reserved for religious occasions only, adds to the importance of Passover. With the soft glow of candlelight, the youngest child asks the Four Questions that are part of the ancient service with the traditional "Why is this night different from all other nights?"

While many Jewish newlyweds return to the parents' homes for the celebration of Passover, some couples start their own family customs. Individual Haggadahs telling the story of Passover are usually given to each guest so that he may follow or participate in the service when close friends are invited to share this enriching experience.

Although the dishes for the feast may vary from family to family, the Passover foods adhere to ancient Jewish tradition.

The three most important symbols of Passover are a shankbone, to stand for the Pascal lamb offering made by the early Jews when celebrating their exodus from Egypt; Matzos, to symbolize the unleavened bread made in haste when the tribe left Egypt; and Maror, bitter herbs, symbol of the bitter hardships endured during their slavery.

Other symbols include a roasted egg, recalling the festival offering in temple days; Charoset, a mixture of chopped apples and nuts, cinnamon and wine, suggesting the brick mortar that the Israelites were forced to make, and parsley, suggesting the first green of spring.

Wine is also an integral part of the ceremony, as is the Cup of Elijah, filled and waiting for the arrival of this prophet who will some day come to bring freedom and peace to the world.

Here are some typical Passover recipes as taken from the New York Post, "The Jewish Cook Book," by Mildred Bellin, and "The Manischewitz Passover Cookbook," by Deborah Ross.

Matzoh Meal Pancakes

Three eggs, separated
One-half cup matzoh meal
One-half cup water
One-eighth teaspoon salt

Beat egg yolks until light and thick. Mix matzoh meal, water and salt until thoroughly blended, then stir in the egg yolks. Beat the egg whites stiff and fold into the batter. Heat a pancake griddle over medium heat, and grease generously. Drop the batter by tablespoonfuls on the griddle. Flatten slightly. Cook until the bottom is golden brown, turn over and brown. Serve with sugar, jam or syrup. Serves 2 or 3.

Fluffy Matzo Balls

Three eggs, separated
Three-quarters cup matzo meal
One-half teaspoon salt

Beat egg whites until stiff; then fold in yolks, which have been beaten with the salt. Fold in matzo meal. Let stand five minutes; then form balls with a spoon and drop into boiling soup stock or salt water. Cover and cook 35 minutes. Recipe makes 12 large balls.

Potato Kugelach

Two eggs
Two cups water
One-quarter cup peanut oil or chicken fat
One-quarter cup matzo meal
6-counce package (or two 3-oz.) potato pancake mix.

Beat eggs with fork until blended. Add water and oil or chicken fat. Stir in matzo meal and potato-pancake mix. Allow batter to thicken for 3 minutes.

Fill greased muffin pans and bake in a hot oven (450 degreesF) 40 to 45 minutes or until well browned and crusty. Loosen with a knife and remove from pan. Makes 12, which will serve 6 or 8.

Matzo Brei

Three Matzos
Butter
Two eggs
Two tablespoons water or milk
One-quarter teaspoon salt
Dash pepper

Break matzos into pieces. Cover with water and then pour water off immediately. Press excess water out of matzos. Melt about 2 tablespoons of butter in a skillet; add matzos and fry until lightly toasted. Beat eggs with remaining ingredients.

Pour over matzos and fry, stirring frequently, until eggs are set. Serves 2 or 3.

A SEDER TABLE as it might be set for a couple's first Passover combines the elegance of beautiful table appointments with the austerity of the symbolic Passover food. The Passover foods adhere to ancient Jewish tradition.

Six-Egg Passover Sponge Cake

Six eggs, separated
One and one-third cups sugar
One-quarter cup water
One and one-half teaspoons grated lemon rind.
Three tablespoons lemon juice
One-half cup cake meal, unsifted
One-half cup potato starch, unsifted
One-quarter teaspoon salt

Beat egg yolks slightly; gradually beat in sugar until mixture is light and fluffy. Add water, lemon rind, and lemon juice; beat thoroughly. Gradually mix in cake meal and potato starch. Beat egg whites with salt until stiff but not dry. Fold into batter gently but thoroughly.

Pour into an ungreased 9-inch tube pan. Bake in a slow oven (325 degrees F) 1 hour and 10 minutes or until cake springs back when touched lightly with a finger. Invert pan and cool throughly before removing cake.

Carrot Tzimmes

Ten medium-size carrots, scraped and diced
One tablespoon margarine
One-half cup raisins
One teaspoon sugar
One-quarter teaspoon salt
One-eighth teaspoon ginger
Three tablespoons water

Put margarine in a skillet and add carrots, sugar and ginger. Cook for about a minute, stirring constantly. Then add raisins, salt and water. Bring to a boil and simmer, covered, about 15 min. or until tender. Serves six.

Cheese Blintzes

Three eggs, well-beaten
One and one-half cups sifted potato starch
One-half teaspoon salt
Three-quarter cup water
One recipe cheese filling
Butter

Mix eggs throughly with potato starch and salt. Gradually stir in the water to make a thin batter. Grease an 8-inch frying pan well, and place over medium heat. When it is hot, pour in one-quarter cup of the batter. Tilt very quickly to spread evenly over the bottom. Cook on one side only until firm but not brown. Invert on a tea towel. Put a tablespoon of the filling in the center and fold up. Repeat with remaining batter and filling.

At serving time, melt enough butter in a large frying pan to cover the bottom to the depth of one-eigth inch. When the shortening is hot, add the blintzes and cook over medium heat on both sides till well-browned. This amount makes 10 to 11 blintzes.

Cottage Cheese Filling for Blintzes

One pound dry cottage cheese
one-slightly beaten egg
One tablespoon sugar
One-quarter teaspoon ground cinnamon.
One-quarter teaspoon salt

Mix all ingredients well. This makes 2 cups.

Passover Almond Macaroons

One pound blanched almonds ground fine
Two egg whites
Two teaspoons fine matzoh meal
Two cups powdered sugar
Grated rind of one lemon

Mix almonds, sugar, cake meal and grated lemon rind. Beat egg writes until stiff and then fold in the almond mixture. Dust a greased cookie sheet thickly with cake meal and drop on teaspoonfuls of batter, allowing room for the cookies to spread when baking. Heat oven to 300 degrees for 15 minutes. Then turn up over to 375 degrees so macaroons will brown. (A half pound of shredded coconut may be substituted for the almonds.) Makes about two dozen macaroons.

Sauteed Chicken Livers

One pound chicken livers
One-quarter cup chicken fat
Two large onions, sliced
One pound mushrooms, sliced
One tablespoon potato starch
Ten and one-half ounce can condensed clear chicken soup, undiluted.
One-quarter cup sauterne wine.
Salt and pepper to taste

Broil livers. Cut into bitesize pieces. Saute onions and mushrooms in the fat until tender. Add livers; saute two minutes. Mix potato starch with a few spoonfuls of the soup. Add this mixture and the balance of the soup to the livers.

Stir and cook 5 minutes. Stir in wine. Season to taste. For more gravy, add additional wine. Serve in puff shells. Serves 6.

Potato Knaidlach

One egg
One cup cold water
Three ounce package potato-pancake mix
One-quarter cup matzo meal
Two tablespoons oil or melted fat

Beat egg with a fork; blend in the water. Add remaining ingredients; stir; allow to thicken 10 minutes. Form into balls the size of a walnut. Drop into a large pot of rapidly boiling salted water.

Cover tightly, reduce heat, and simmer 30 minutes. Drain and serve in soup, stew, or as a side dish with meats and poultry. Makes 15 to 18.

Spice Cake

Six eggs, separated
Three-quarters cup sugar
One teaspoon ground cinnamon
One teaspoon ground ginger
One-half teaspoon ground cloves
One-half cup sifted potato starch
Two tablespoons matzoh meal

Place egg yolks in mixing bowl. Sift sugar and spices together the potato starch Beat until light and thick. Stir together the potatoe starch and matzoh meal and blend lightly into the batter.

Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, and fold the batter into the whites. Pour into a greased 8 x 8 inch x 2 inch pan, and bake at 325 degrees F. about 40 minutes, until golden brown, and a cake tester inserted in the center comes out dry.

Very carefully, invert on a rack, invert again on another rack and cool.

The Administration, personnel and children of St. Cabrini Home will take this opoortunity to thank Sister Serana for her sacrifices toward the successful operation of the Home.

ROOM TO TRAP DIRT

Before the spring thaw sets in, try a "mudroom" to trap dirt before it gets into the house. Ideally, it should have a sink with hot and cold water, a place to hang jackets and store boots, counter space next to the sink for putting flowers or vegetables as they're cleaned, a water closet and a shower for use by the "hands," farm or otherwise, who live at your house.

First Strike Temptation

The increasing accuracy of nuclear missiles may tempt the two superpowers—the United States or the Soviet Union—to risk a preemptive surprise nuclear first strike against the other, the authoritative Strategic Survey 1969 warns.

For the first time in two decades of "peace through mutual terror," the international research organization says, "the increasing accuracy of nuclear missiles presents an even greater threat of the strategic balance than multiheaded weapons such as MIRV." This terrifying possibility is the main reason why the strategic arms limitation talks between the United States and the Soviet Union in Vienna this week are so important.

The shadow of mainland China will lie across the table. It could spur the Soviets to reach an agreement, since it has deployed 28 divisions on its frontier with China and would want to be free to use them without fear of an American attack. However, with China having a nuclear capability and other nations nuclear potentials, it will be very difficult to construct a nuclear arms limitation agreement.

We can only hope, with President Nixon, that his mission will find the way to accomplish the feat he has assigned them.

They Didn't Make It

President Nixon is in the best of company when it comes to having his nominees for the Supreme Court challenged by the Senate. Washington's nominee for Chief Justice, John Rutledge, was rejected in 1795 after he had served two years as an associate justice. And John Quincy Adams' choice, Roger B. Taney, was rejected as an associate justice, renominated and confirmed and served 28 years as chief justice, though he had no judicial training.

Altogether, 10 were rejected, 10 nominations postponed and seven withdrawn, according to a tabulation made by Richard L. Strout for the Christian Science Monitor.

The Presidents concerned, starting with Washington and continuing to Nixon, included, in addition, Madison, J. Q. Adams, Jackson, Tyler, Polk, Fillmore, Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, Grant, Hayes, Cleveland, Hoover, Lyndon Johnson.

Thus among 124 appointments made in the nearly 200 years of the Republic, 15 Presidents out of the 36 have seen 24 of their nominees—one-fifth of those they had named—fail to win confirmation.

Exhaust-ive Analysis

Next time your friendly local highway patrolman waves you to the side of the road for a "breath" test, it may not be alcohol consumption but hydrocarbon emission he's interested in.

Police in California have begun a portable "smog sniffer" to monitor automobile exhausts. A new device called the Autoscan 610 Hydrocarbon Analyzer makes possible roadside checks of smog-producing pollutants coming out of automobile tailpipes. About the size of a portable television set, the analyzer rides on the rear seat of cruisers and is powered by a portable generator.

The way things are going, it won't be long until the stinking driver is considered almost as much a public menace as the drinking driver.

"Y'all Got a Road Map?"

Henry J. Taylor Says

Will Thailand Be Next?

In expanding the Vietnam war into a renewed Indochina war by further involving Cambodia, the Hanoi enemy is doing what comes naturally. Will Thailand be next?

Cambodia was created out of Indochina by the 1954 Geneva agreements with France. It is only the size of Oklahoma but has 6½ million people. The agreements also provided for an independent Laos and Vietnam, French Indochina's remaining components. The covenant was also guaranteed by the Soviet Union and Great Britain.

More than 150,000 French troops died in Indochina. In addition to carving out Cambodia and Laos, the agreements split Vietnam into North and South. The same Communists who are now fighting guaranteed to withdraw all Red Forces to the 17th parallel within 100 days. North and South Vietnam must forgo military alliances. Each must halt the import of foreign arms. Free elections must reunite North and South Vietnam by July, 1956. These elections would be supervised by Polish, Indian and Canadian observers.

Red China? She participated in the three-month Geneva conference. Every provision was officially endorsed by both Red China and the U.S.S.R.—signed, sealed and delivered.

Not one provision was ever carried out—and we see what we now see in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

Thailand borders on Cambodia; it stands between Cambodia, Laos and Burma. The country is about the size of France and extends down most of the tapering peninsula that wanders off towards Singapore.

The Siamese (34 million) call their country Muang Thai, which means Land of Free People. The name Siam is a foreign corruption, as unintelligible to the Thais as "China" is in China. And Thailand, as Siam became known during World War II, has always been fiercely independent. In fact, Thailand is the only nation in the entire area that never has been ruled by a foreign power.

As long ago as 1962 our Central Intelligence Agency operatives saw the Red Chinese deliver 5,000 transport loads of war materials to Tchepone, Laos, 100 miles east of Savanaket, headed against us in Vietnam down the Ho Chi Minh trail, and the Red infiltration into Cambodia was systematized at about the same time.

The firepower we assembled in the over-all area was greater than at any time or place in World War II. But the Hanoi enemy relied on underground cover, concealment and dispersal against our built-up air and ground firepower.

Their strategy has been not to offer objectives to the Western guns. We have had the guns and few targets. They have had the targets and relatively few guns.

More than half of our casualties have been from mines, bobby traps and ambushes. For example, "a Malayan gate" is a booby-trap sapling held back across a path and tripped by a hidden wire. The Reds are using not only the same types of booby traps and ambushes but many of them in the same places were they succeeded in destroying French military convoys throughout the Indochina war.

Although there are battle-organized, artillery-equipped engagements by the enemy, the war spreading into Cambodia is still fought in a guerrilla environment. The dominant military characteristic is the intelligence contrast. The guerrillas know all that is happening in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia. Our counterforces move in a perpetual fog. This fog is hard to lift, for it begins with the fears of the people.

The "Vietnamization" of the war — the turning over of most fighting to the Vietnamese — will be no easier. For example, just prior to the February, 1968, Tet lunar new year holiday, when the Reds struck Saigon and 43 cities, almost half of the manpower of most of the South Vietnamese Army's divisions had returned to their homes around the country for the holidays.

The attacks achieved another of the enemy's sweeping tactical surprises. The U.S. command in Saigon thought about 15,000 would attack. During the attack this was recalculated at 36,000. The actual number turned out to be 60,000. The "Vietnamization" has gone a good distance since then, but it has a very long way to go.

"Peace" in Vietnam would change the war, but it would not end it — there, or in Laos and Cambodia, meaning the whole of Indochina once again, with a probable cracking into Thailand as well.

Nixon Wants to Increase Revenues Without Hiking Taxes

WASHINGTON—The world's greatest balancing act — Barnum and Bailey notwithstanding — is being attempted in Washington by President Nixon.

He is trying daringly (1) to balance the huge federal budget and (2) to grant promised pay raises to postal and other government employes without (3) increasing taxes.

At a secret breakfast session with GOP congressional leaders, the President asked plaintively how they might accomplish all this.

"How," he pleaded, "are we going to meet the argument of no more tax legislation this year?"

Answering his own question, he proposed what he delicately called "acceleration" of estate and gift taxes. This "acceleration," he promised, would be "a one-shot deal." It should provide enough revenue to keep his 1971 budget balanced, he said hopefully, then the pay raises could be financed out of higher postal rates.

Tax Talk

"You've got to raise more revenue," emphatically agreed Wisconsin's Congressman John Byrnes, the top Republican on the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee. But he feared that any tax "acceleration" would open up a Pandora's Box.

"The postal reform package didn't include estate and gift tax reforms," he pointed out. "As soon as we touch it, we'll open it up to such proposals as capital gains taxes, capital levies and other tax reforms—all inflammatory."

"Can't you separate out these acceleration proposals?" asked the President.

"It wouldn't be easy," said Byrnes. He reminded the President that "this is an election year, so we can expect all sorts of irresponsiblity."

Nixon then raised the possibility of adding "other excise taxes." Turning to Delaware's Senator John Williams, the ranking Republican on the Senate Finance Committee, the President asked: "John, could you handle it in the Senate without making it a Christmas tree?"

"No," Williams replied flatly, although he personally "could support the acceleration features."

Ten-Cent Stamps

"It's totally irresponsible not to raise the revenue to pay for this," Nixon declared. "The Republican position should be pay as you go." Then he turned to Senate GOP leader Hugh Scott and House GOP leader Gerald Ford.

"Jerry, Hugh, can you wheel it?" asked the President point-blank.

They promised to try.

Footnote: The President acknowledged at the secret strategy session that it would be difficult, in an election year, to get Congress to increase first-class postage to 10 cents. But he pleaded that "the 10-cent stamp would cost the average householder only $4 a year."

He also made clear that it was his own idea to increase mail rates.

"The new 10-cent stamp is our suggestion," he said, "not a part of the agreement with the unions."

Postmaster General Winton Blount also disputed the contention that the first-class mail users help pay for the junk mail that corporations unload into the mails.

"Criticism about junk mail is largely myth," he said. "It pays a higher percentage of its load than first-class mail."

Delaying Justice

The Supreme Court, in its last great consumer decision, ruled on June 16, 1969, that El Paso Natural Gas should get rid of Pacific Northwest Pipeline "without delay" to restore competition in the gigantic California natural gas market.

It has now been 10 months since the Supreme Court's without-delay order. Yet the Justice Department has done its best to hold up enforcement of the edict.

Attorney General John Mitchell has asked for an amendment to the decree, further delaying the case. In February, a letter from the Justice Department to the District Court judge, who is supposed to enforce the order, mildly urges the judge to take his sweet time. And at a hearing, Justice made proposals for an El Paso "study" that would mean months more of waiting by the consumers.

It is worth mentioning that El Paso — which benefits $1 million a month from the delay—has paid President Nixon's and Attorney General Mitchell's former law firm at least $771,129.83 in fees.

Meanwhile, as if working with the Justice Department to stall the case, the new Supreme Court under Chief Justice Warren Burger is sitting on 17 petitions. Only the millions of consumers, fearful of another El Paso rate raise, seem to be in a hurry to see the law carried out.

Footnote: El Paso has been under four Supreme Court orders to divest since 1962. In both the Kennedy and Johnson administrations, the Justice Department backed away from pushing the case. Clark Clifford, an intimate of both Presidents, once was retained by El Paso as counsel.

But the Democrats weren't as blatant about helping El Paso as the Republicans have been. Four days after Mitchell took command of the Justice Department, he permitted dropping of the anti-trust case against El Paso, although Solicitor General Erwin Griswold took the official blame. The dismissal was so unusual that the Warren Court took the case away from Justice, saying Mitchell had no right "to alter or modify our mandate."

Inflation Lid Likely to Blow

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — The way it looks now, President Nixon's program to halt inflation is going to boomerang.

Major price increases may be slowed temporarily (though even that is not certain at this writing).

But some of the measures Nixon's men are using to slow things down are setting up the economy for hefty inflation pressures in the future.

The tight money market has cut sharply into funds men and women are putting into the building and loan associations. Instead, depositors are investing their money where it will bring larger returns. This means less money for mortgages. As a result, fewer homes are being built than are needed. This inflates the price of homes, old and new. Even after controls are loosened, this increasing home shortage will take years to whittle down. An artificial bulge in building will be necessary to catch up and bring the home inventory up to a reasonable level. This also will be inflationary.

The tight money market is making it much more difficult for small firms to secure the working capital they require to stay in business.

Take one example, a small Washington firm with an AA rating. This company has increased its business and profits every year for the past decade and a half. It does a unique business requiring considerable skill and ingenuity. It has $2.4 million in firm contracts with sound companies. But to carry those contracts until the work is done, delivered and paid for, the firm requires a drawing account of $400,000 in working capital.

This is, of course, normal business practice. Usually, banks make such funds available as a matter of course to small firms with such high credit ratings.

But not this time. The company in question found the banks had no money available. The head of the firm traveled over much of the United States looking for money.

Finally, he gave up, sold his company to a large firm at book value—which is far below its worth. In return, he received stock in the large firm. He now runs his business as a subsidiary.

Now this does several things. It increases the cost of his product. The big company must now add a percentage for its own overhead. It cuts back competition; there are now fewer independent, competing companies in the field. It reduces new developments and pioneering in new methods, because most big companies are less able to take risks that might cut profits. They're interested primarily in the money their subsidiaries make. A small businessman, with his own company, is better able to take these risks — which means progress —because he's so close to operations he can attempt novel approaches yet catch mistakes or bumbles before the mistakes become ruinous. He also has less red tape to go through.

New firms with advanced products in many cases are finding it impossible to go into business. They can't find the money they require — even when they have contracts guaranteeing sales and profits large enough to pay the loans and interest with no difficulty.

This made 1969 a field day for big firms with capital to absorb small firms unable to get bank loans because of the tight money market.

The tight money market is forcing a good many businessmen, large and small, to pay very high interest rates for long-term loans. Electric power companies are especially hard hit, because they have no choice but to keep on expanding. They can't put off building new plants until interest rates are low, or there will be power blackouts. These long-term borrowings at extremely high rates build in cost increases which, of course, are passed on to their customers.

Greece Is Special Problem For NATO and United States

By LEON DENNEN
(NEA Foreign News Analyst)

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (NEA)—Because Ioannis Kapsis, the courageous Greek editor, urged the restoration of democracy in his country, an Athens military tribunal sentenced him to five years in prison and closed his 57-year-old newspaper, Ethnos.

The verdict of the "special court" hand-picked by Premier Papadopoulos was hardly a surprise.

The strongman of the colonel's junto that now rules Greece has been increasingly resorting to suppression in his desperate efforts to cope with growing internal pressure for political freedom.

According to reports reaching the United Nations, Greece's jails are overcrowded with men and women who defy the junta and challenge its policies. The European Commission on Human Rights has also disclosed that torture and other inhuman acts have been "officially tolerated" by the colonels.

This is more proof—if proof is still needed—that dictators, whether rightists or leftists, are brothers under the skin. They may quarrel and even come to blows on occasions, but they are united in their common fear of freedom and human decency.

There is little that the free world can do to bring relief to the people of Russia, Red China, Franco's Spain and Fidel Castro's Cuba.

But Greece is a special problem for NATO and especially the United States. It is one of the few remaining countries where an American is still a welcome friend and not an "imperialist."

More important, Greece is vital to NATO's southern flank.

However, according to George Mylanos, a former deputy prime minister who recently escaped from Greece, American tolerance and even support of Papadopoulos and his junta, is rapidly alienating the Greek people from the United States.

In his view, without America's moral and economic support the dictatorship would not last long.

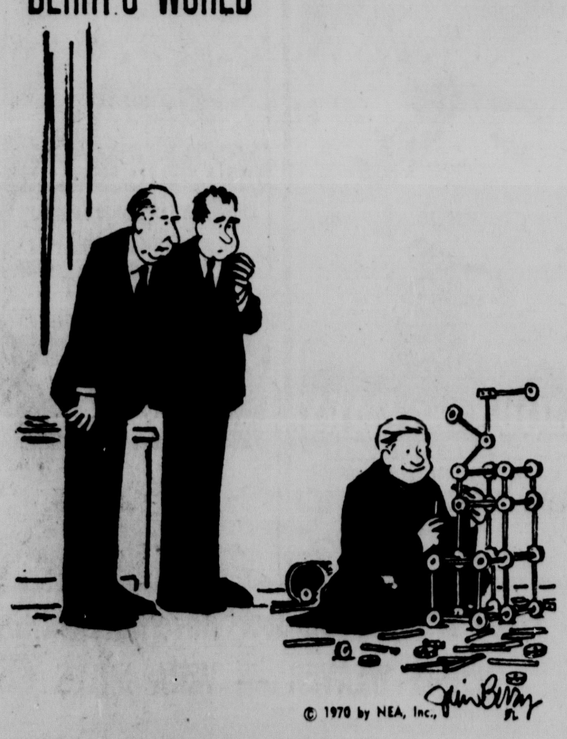

"I don't say that the United States should intervene to help us—that's out of the question," Mylanos told this writer.

"But the Pentagon should stop intervening in support of the colonels."

The Pentagon has its own military and strategic consideration, of course. But can NATO rely on the loyalty of the junta?

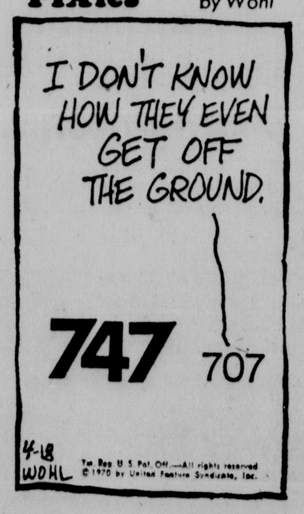

The colonels seized power in 1967 and suppressed democracy ostensibly to prevent a Communist take-over of Greece. But in recent months they have shown increasing interest in collaborating with Moscow.

Understandably, Papadopoulos finds it more congenial to deal with his fellow dictators in the East than with the Western democracies. He has even been asserting lately that communism is no longer a threat to his country.

"They say this one's a STRICT 'Constructionist'."

Arctic Pollution Controls

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — When Canada's Prime Minister Trudeau offered legislation to establish his country's unilateral control for "antipollution" purposes over a zone roughly 100 miles north from the Canadian Arctic islands, he played an ace the United States cannot easily match.

There evidently is some private official grumblings here that Trudeau is playing an internal political game of his own while exerting pressures on the United States to negotiate special rules for the Arctic which other nations might use as a precedent that could cripple the vital free movement of ocean-going commercial ships.

But Trudeau has a tremendous advantage which we cannot gainsay. An incredible series of oil spills, many in or near U.S. coastal waters, has given any "antipollution" undertaking an urgency which makes talk about the conventional freedom of the seas seem dangerously outdated.

The fact is, Trudeau has a highly salable case when he talks, as he does, about the perils to Arctic ecology from possible oil spills out of tankers which may make the Northwest Passage from our developing rich fields on Alaska's North Slope.

The prime minister argues persuasively that in the Arctic the life forces are as delicately balanced as anywhere in the world — that the close link between land, sea and ice might be disrupted for centuries by pollution.

In Alaska, tractor tread marks from World War II still scar the desert-like plant growth of the northern tundra lands. Moss and lichens may take a century to grow in old wheel ruts. The marine life adapted to the brutally cold but pure Arctic waters might never recover from any measurable temperature changes or other effects of pollutants.

Moreover, sea ice more than two years old is hard enough to cut through ordinary steel ship plates like a hatchet. And though the celebrated U.S. experimental tanker Manhattan, now making its second voyage toward Alaska through the ice-choked Northwest Passage, is specially armored against ice, it suffered several cracked plates and a bus-sized hole on its historic first trip last summer.

Some qualified sources here believe, however, that the Canadians mistakenly view the Manhattan as a prototype of the tankers we might use regularly in those waters. I am reliably informed it is not.

At 150,000 tons and 1,005-foot length, the Manhattan is the largest ice-breaker ever built. Foreign experts aboard on the 1969 voyage gaped in amazement as it cracked through 60-foot-thick ice floes. Its bow can take pressures up to 600 pounds per square inch (for the average ship hull it is 15 pounds). The ship also has a steel girdle of extra thickness at the water line.

I talked to one of the designers of this vessel. He asks not to be identified. But he told me any regular U.S. Arctic tankers would not only have the same tough prow and girdle as the Manhattan, but probably a very thick double hull over-all — able to withstand pressure up to 300 pounds per square inch. This would be much beyond the breaking strength of the hardest Arctic ice.

TEEN SCENE: The Beatle That Took a Flight

by LEI

Perhaps it seemed from the beginning that the Beatles were too good to last. The first rumors of split-up came before the group (as we know it) even existed. The Liverpool jellybean set predicted they'd never make it without Pete Best. Since then, on an average of once every six months, there would be a rumor that the Beatles had retired, were washed up, or had split apart.

So far, the rumors have been smoke without fire. The Beatles stopped doing public appearances, grew their hair, developed varied interests and had their private quarrels, but the music kept on, growing and maturing with them. Then, last week, with a thud of the Empire State Building blowing over, Paul McCartney announced that, for the time being, he was going to follow a solo career. His statement left little to the imagination. Apparently the gossip about lack of harmony in the group was on-key. He cited musical differences, personal differences—and the fact that he enjoyed family life more than being a Beatle.

Musical groups of the '50s frequently were assembled by their management, and despite their on-stage banter and statements in their publicity, often group members never saw each other when not performing. In fact, hostilities within the groups were the rule, not the exception. They were in it for the bread, and they thought they'd make more as part of the group. If a member of the group was exceptionally popular, often he left to try it solo. Just as often, the group replaced him, and kept hitting the charts, while the solitary member vanished as though he had walked down an elevator shaft. (Yes, and occasionally he became a star on his own, and the erstwhile group ended washing dishes at Woolworths.)

So when the Beatles screamed and pranced their way across America exactly six years ago they were unusual in more ways than one. They were genuine 'best friends," who had gone to school together, been in jail together, and sung together for over a half-decade before they were discovered by the late Brian Epstein. Ironically, the most popular member of the group at that time was the drummer, Pete Best. He was the one replaced soon after the group began to record.

Also unusual was how well the Beatles' talents complimented each other. Every member of the group made several indispensable contributions. Their personalities differed enough that there wasn't a Beatlemaniac (How long has it been since you heard that term!) who didn't have a favorite Beatle—reserved George; shy Ringo; intelligent, impudent John; and friendly, handsome Paul. It was Paul who sang the lead in at least four out of five Beatle songs, and it was he and John who cooperated to write most of the material for the group. Paul played the bass and the piano and later on, the organ and the flute and . . .

It was soon obvious that, while all the Beatles were indispensable, John and Paul were the most indispensable. Financially, they did better because they received royalties on the material they wrote. Since they had flamboyant personalities, they got most of the publicity.

If there had ever been any doubt which Beatle had the most singing talent, it vanished when "Yesterday" became a hit. But each Beatle had a special talent, and in time, they began manifesing them individually, as well as part of the group. John tried films, but surprisingly, the shy, ugly one, Ringo, was the best actor. George, who had written little music for the group, did talented composing and much work with Indian music. By the end of the '60s all of the Beatles were married (one of them twice), and all but George had families.

Any four high school friends who were married and approaching 30 would have grown apart, and the Beatles were no exception. Common interests which had been the basis for their friendship had dissolved. All that remained was the group name, "the Beatles." And the music. And the money.

Where there once were friendships and laughter and memories, there are now jealousy, misunderstanding, bitterness, and personal problems. Particulary between conservative Paul and individualist John. Paul has proved he can make a hit record without the Beatles. But without Paul, the Beatles lack a voice and half of the band.

And Paul has left to perform solo. Peace is in pieces, and Apple is bruised and dumped in the trash bin. Paul isn't dead, but he may have succeeded in killing the Beatle that spun the gold cocoon, and wiping out the hottest musical property of the 20th century.

What happened to the Paul and John who wrote "We Can Work It Out?" Or did those sentiments belong to . . . yesterday?

Art and Ecology Featured on Trips

Area high school students are tripping more than the light fantastic these days.

The humanities class of Saugerties High School recently visiting New York City and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. The field trip was carried out as part of the cultural studies which have concerned the class. Students viewed many of the 365,000 objects within the 17½ acres of this museum.

Especially popular were the three-story American wing, the Renaissance rooms which have been created from old European paintings representing such masters as Grotti, Raphael, VanEyck, Titian, El Greco, Rembrandt, VanGogh, and Picasso.

Rondout Valley High School biology students recently went tripping off to the briny deep for a fishing adventure and a lesson in ocean ecology. Thirty-nine students and six adults took part in the jaunt to Hoboken, N.J. and the sail aboard the Palace II with Captain Will Baletti at the helm.

Captain Baletti who has sailed for the past 40 years in New York Harbor gave the students some interesting information about the changes he has seen in that time.

The captain summarized today's fishing by saying that the seasons for each variety seem to be much shorter, fish are smaller and many types of fish once common to the area have disappeared. An interesting and unusual point was made by Captain Baletti concerning the dumping of raw garbage in the harbor. When this was common practice many years ago, he said the fish seemed to thrive on it, especially ling, an important commercial fish. Whole potatoes and large parts of vegetables were found as stomach contents. Further research into migration and eating habits of the fish are needed to determine this he noted.

Milwaukee, Lakers Score

(By The Associated Press)

Listen, the New York Knicks are setting off Lew Alcindor. Tick . . . tick . . . tick. Boom!

Alcindor, charged up after two losses to New York, scored 33 points and collected a club record 31 rebounds to lead Milwaukee to a pressure 101-96 victory in the National Basketball Association playoffs Friday night.

It was a must win for the young Bucks against the Knicks, who now hold a 2-1 lead in their best-of-7 Eastern Division finals with game No. 4 coming up in Milwaukee Sunday.

In the nights other NBA playoff game, the Los Angeles Lakers moved within one game of sweeping the Western Division finals with a 115-114 overtime triumph over the Atlanta Hawks.

The New York Nets tripped Kentucky 122-118 in overtime, Denver beat Washington 130-111 and Los Angeles turned back Dallas 115-103 in opening round games of the American Basketball Association playoffs.

The Bucks erased an early Knick advantage and sprinted to a 29-16 first quarter lead at Milwaukee.

New York repeatedly narrowed the gap, but could never come closer than seven points. Bob Dandridge helped keep the pressure on the Knicks with 22 points.

Wilt Chamberlain, a notoriously poor shooter, sank two in a row with 17 seconds left to give the Lakers a 3-0 edge going to Sunday's game at Los Angeles. Atlanta's Butch Beard hit two free throws to tie the score at 105 after regulation time.

Chamberlain, who made nine of 16 from the free throw line.

Poughkeepsie Nine Defeats Saugerties

POUGHKEEPSIE

The Pioneers of Poughkeepsie High School scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning to defeat visiting Saugerties, 2-0 yesterday in a Dutchess County Scholastic League Central Section tilt. Al Quigley was the winning pitcher, while Gary Silinovich took the loss.

Quigley struck out seven while walking one. Silinovich k'd five and also issued a free pass.

With one out, Bob Lippmann singled for Poughkeepsie and John Clark came into run for him. Dennis Ladzinski slammed a double to deep left center field and Clark, running on the pitch, scored all the way from first. Tony Johnson then hit a sacrifice fly with Ladzinski moving to third. After Damon Ornowski struck out, Al McGuire singled to left, scoring Ladzinski.

Saugerties had a threat going in the fifth inning but couldn't capitalize on it as Dave Smith and Tom Cole hit back-to-back singles. Smith moved to third on a fielder's choice by Skip VanBlarcum. VanBlarcum then attempted a steal of second, but instead of firing through to second, Ornowski pegged to third baseman Jack Cohen, picking off Clark.

The Sawyers also had two men on and two outs in the sixth, but Jeff Markle flied out to end the rally.

Saugerties is now 1-2 overall and plays host to Kingston on Monday.

Zappone Stars In New Paltz Win

PINE BUSH

Rapid Ray Zappone and his team, New Paltz High, defending champs of the Ulster County Athletic League, turned in another sparkling UCAL performance yesterday, defeating host Pine Bush, 9-0. In other UCAL games, Rondout beat Marlboro, 12-6 and Highland topped Wallkill 6-3.

Zappone was simply overpowering as he limited the home side to just one hit while striking out 15 batters. Ray also helped his own cause with a run-producing double as the winners exploded for nine runs in the top of the seventh inning. Kevin Kelly took the loss and managed the only hit off Zappone.

Jay Ackert and Harold Anderson had two hits apiece for the winners and also hit doubles, along with Brad Hart. John Palonis had a triple and a run batted in, while Anderson and Bill Schiller also produced rbis.

Durcan Is Perfect

John Durcan helped Mike Alecca wrap up a win for Rondout, going four-for-four at the plate, including a double and five rbis. Durcan also scored three runs himself. Bruce Burr and three ribbys and Vaughn Stancage, two. Stancage also had a double.

Rich Curtone went two-for-two for the Dukes, while Dan Passante also had two hits for Marlboro, including a double. John Simmons and George Fuhrmann slapped two-baggers for the losers. Charlie Jones was the losing hurler as the Ganders scored in every inning but the fifth.

Skipp Stars

Joe Skipp struck out eight men and walked none as the Highlanders drove in five runs in the top of the fifth to ice their tilt with Wallkill. Tony Biancardi had two hits and two ribbys for the winners, while Carlos Rodriquez, Pete Afa and Tom DiStasi also added rbis for Highland.

John Dunn homered in the first with nobody on for the homeside. Jim Caldenn took the loss.

Cater Hits for Yanks

By United Press International

Danny Cater has been having a bad week, his New York Yankee teammates have been having a bad season.

But the luck finally turned good for Danny and his friends on Friday night as they defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 4-1, in 11 innings.

Elsewhere in the AL, the Detroit Tigers defeated the Boston Red Sox, 3-2, in 11 innings, the Oakland A's whipped the Minnesota Twins, 5-2, and the Kansas City Royals beat the California Angels, 7-5.

In the National League, New York shut out Philadelphia, 6-0, Chicago beat Montreal, 8-7, St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh, 5-2, Cincinnati whipped San Francisco, 8-5, and Houston beat San Diego, 4-1.

Cater and the Yankees, who had lost three straight, maintained the breaks had to start balancing out.

Happens in 11th

It finally happened in the 11th inning. Horace Clarke led off the inning with a single, but reliever Dick Hall retired the next two men on a strike out and an easy roller with Clarke going to second.

Roy White was then intentionally walked, and lefthanded pitcher Pete Ward slapped an easy grounder to shortstop Mark Belanger, who fielded the ball and threw it toward second base. Unfortunately for the Orioles, second baseman Dave Johnson was standing quietly 15 feet from the bag. He caught the ball but was given an error for messing up the force play and filling the bases.

Cater responded to the situation by slicing a line drive into the right field corner for a triple that cleared the bases.

The Yankees' first run came in the fourth off starter Tom Phoebus when Bobby Murcer singled, went to third on White's single and scored on Curt Blefary's fly.

McDaniel Gets Win

Mel Stottlemyre was throwing a three-hit shutout until the eighth when he gave up the tying run on two singles and a walk. Terry Crowley whipped a grounder past Stottlemyre's glove to score Brooks Robinson from third with the run. Lindy McDaniel pitched the final two innings to get the victory.

New Allen Hits Homer

(By The UPI)

Remember that Richie Allen who was booed out of Philadelphia?

He was supposed to be playing for St. Louis this season but the Cardinals' "Dick" Allen bears little resemblance to the Richie Allen who became so infamous in Philadelphia.

Allen, who says, "call me anything but Richie," slugged his fourth homer in eight games Friday night to spark the Cards to a 5-2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Cards have won six of those eight games to lead the Eastern Division.

When he was reminded that if he keeps up his pace of hitting a homer every other game, he'd wind up with 81 in 162 games, Allen laughed. "Gee, who could pay that kind of money next year."

In the other games, New York blanked Philadelphia, 6-0, Chicago edged Montreal, 8-7, Cincinnati downed Pittsburgh, 8-5, and Houston edged San Diego, 4-1. The Los Angeles-Atlanta game was rained out.

Tom Seaver scattered eight hits for his first shutout of the season and Bud Harrelson hit his second major league homer (his first was an inside-the-park drive) as New York beat Philadelphia. Seaver's complete game and Harrelson's homer were the first this year for the Mets.

KBT Tourney Set Tonight

KINGSTON

The Kingston Basketball Tournament moves into the semi-final games tonight with Ray Chevrolet of Kingston going against Paddock Charges of Poughkeepsie in the 7 p.m. game and Sickler's Delivery of Kingston taking on Felicello Pipers of Marlboro in the 8 p.m. game, at the Municipal Auditorium.

Ray's and Sickler's are the favorites to win tonight, but both games will be close. Ray's seem to have a little more scoring punch from long distance and work the ball exceptionally well. Paddock Chargers have the height advantage on the Chevvies and are very capable of beating Ray's if they get away with that fast break of theirs.

Leading the Chevvie squad is high scoring Rod Chando ex UCCC star and playmaker Mike Derrenbacher. Doing the board work for Ray's is Ray Lindhorst and newcomer Mike Joy. Bob "Bundles" Bondar is the fifth auto starter and is still living up to his nick name as old reliable.

The Chargers are led by Joe Molinaro, Gay Powell, Fred Weiss and Larry McClinton.

Sickler's, who are the tournament favorites figures to find Felicello Pipers no easy game as big tall lanky Dick O'Neil can do plenty of damage both on offense and defense. Other Piper members are Steve Aurigemma, Dick Knox, John Selino and Rod Aurigemma.

Sickler's are led by an array of Ulster CCC stars. Jerry Moss, Gary Kirkwood, Glen Berry, Linell Marshall and Brad Litty. The delivery team has added Ed Strong of St. Peters College to the team for added rebound and scoring strength.

The two winners will compete for the championship Sunday night at 8:15 p.m. and the consolation game will start at 7 p.m.

You don't hear much about smelt fishing but Paul M. Kelsey, the Regional Conservation Educator for the State Conservation Department, says it is the most popular form of fishing in Cayuga Lake these days.

The smelt aren't actually taken from the lake, but from the lower section of several of the tributaries where they come up to spawn. Their stay in the streams is short, for they don't leave the sanctuary of the lake until after dark, and by sunrise the next morning they are again back in the lake.

THERE WAS A TIME when smelt fishing was a major enterprise along the Eddyville Falls, but both the number of fish and fishermen has dwindled steadily since 1955.

Jimmy Martin, who operates the Anchorage Inn at Eddyville, the gathering place for the smelt fishing clan, says the last, fairly decent season was two years ago.

"There was some smelt fishing activity before the heavy rains this spring," said Martin, "but generally speaking the traffic hasn't been too heavy."

Martin recalled that 15 years ago the flats swarmed with fishermen who started getting their gear in shape as early as February.

"Right now," he added "there are still a few of the regulars fishing, like Jim Kennedy, Frankie Emberson, Butch Clark and a few others, but nothing like the old days."

We asked Martin if water pollution had anything to do with the dwindling smelt population and declining interest among the anglers. He didn't commit himself, but there are some fishermen who feel pollution is a big factor. Just like pollution has substantially decreased the shad run in the Hudson river.

AS KELSY POINTS OUT, anyone with boots and bucket, lantern and license and a smelt net can learn the sport of smelting during the run simply by standing on the bank and watching for a few minutes. If there are still any questions the man standing next to you will be glad to help. In this respect, too, smelting is unlike any other type of fishing. Most successful fishermen, as you know, are reluctant to pass out hard-learned secrets to anyone but special friends, but nobody hides any secrets about smelting.

On a good night, blind dipping in deep holes may often result in a dozen fish at a time. Many prefer stalking in clear, shallow water and trying to scoop up individual duals as the smelt work upstream.

Anyway, that's the way it used to be in the good old days at Eddyville Falls.

IN RESPONSE TO requests from a growing number of New York State hunters, the State Conservation Department has set up an expanded spring wild turkey hunt in nine counties from May 4 through May 9. Unfortunately, Ulster is not one of the counties.

Bearded wild turkeys may only be taken in Allegany, Cattagaraugus, Chautauqua, Chemung, Delaware, Schyler, Steuben, Tioga and Tompkins counties. The new additions this year Delaware, Tioga and Tompkins, making possible for greater public participation in this unusual hunting opportunity.

The wild turkey is the largest upland game bird in the nation. Once common in the Empire State, this wary woods bird was totally eliminated by a combination of hunting and destruction of habitat. The bird is returning now, thanks to improving habitat and a carefully planned campaign by the Conservation Department's Bureau of Wildlife.

RESTORATION OF THE wild turkey actually began with the farm depressions in the 1920's and 1930's. As marginal farms went out of production, especially in the hilly portion of the state on the Pennsylvania border, a woodland habitat began to re-establish itself. This natural return to woods as well as intensive reforestation of other areas produced—30 years later—the type of woods cover that the big birds need.

NOW THAT CONSERVATION'S thankfully become a marketable commodity in the mass media, the world is out: We've got troubles. But there's a distressing, recurring theme in Life, Look, Newsweek, etc, that pollution just happened yesterday: that it is the lamentable price of progress as measured by the broken GNP yardstick; that we are all joining hands to make the world a better place to live.

And that is all a crock.

Good men have been bent and broken in the anti-pollution battle for years. Today's pollution levels are no more necessary to GNP that it is necessary to cut off your nose to clean your sinuses. If you really believe The Boys are going to roll over and play dead just because the public's got environmental religion, you have been had by those four-color ads.

And if today's young people don't know it, they sense it.

QUOTE OF THE WEEK: A large part of the pollution control equipment sold today is used to clean water coming into a plant for use in manufacturing rather than to cleanse it before discharge." Business Week.

Red Hook High School scored two runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to defeat visiting Pawling, 4-3 Friday in a Bi-Valley League game. Jeff Thompson was the winning pitcher, while Chris Hicks took the loss.

Red Hook is now 1-0 in the league and 1-2 overall. The next game for the East Bank club will be a home tilt against Brewster on Monday.

Palone and Moore Address KHS Group

KINGSTON

Joe Palone, varsity soccer coach at West Point, was billed as the principal speaker for the annual Kingston High School Athletic Awards Dinner, but he brought along another guest who stole a bit of his thunder.

Len Moore, captain of the 1969 Army football team and now a member of the coaching staff, thrilled the all-time record crowd of more than 350 persons with a dynamic speech to the more than 135 varsity letter winners at Kingston High.

Moore, who gained more than 240 yards and carried the ball 40 times out of the team's 52 running plays in the rout of Navy last season, made a pitch to bridge the generation gap in coaching.

"I feel I have an advantage over most coaches, since I am only a few years older than the players," he told his eager listeners. "There is none of that generation gap you hear about."

Better Communication

Moore said he thought kids tended to communicate better with coaches nearer their age. He spoke about setting goals to point to and said he didn't mean to rib the older coaches. He figured he would be an old coach himself some day.

Palone, a highly successful soccer coach whose Army booters have won 148 games, lost 52 and tied 25 in 20 seasons, spoke on what he termed the four D's in sports—discipline, dedication, desire and determination.

He dwelt on his personal career both as a participant and coach in various sports and vigorously defended the fine influence of sports on young people.

"You hear a lot about the five per cent who rebel and refuse to conform," he said. "But something should be said about the 95 per cent who are good kids."

Welcomed By Mayor

The welcome to the guests was made by Mayor Koenig, a member of the Athletic Awards Dinner Committee. The toastmaster, Vic Mahoney, introduced Louis Salzmann, Superintendent of Schools; Arthur H. Withall, president of the Board of Education; High School Principal Dan Allen and William J. Hurley, Athletic Director.

Members of the dinner committee, in addition to Mayor Koenig, were: Vincent DeLuca, Dr. Bart Dutto, Charles Marable, Joseph Esposito, Louis Fuoco, James Gilpatric, Hurley, John W. Johnson, Andrew Murphy, Robert Murray and Ronald Scheffel. Also present was the entire coaching staff.

It was noted that Kingston High fielded four DUSO League championship teams—golf, boys and girls skiing and swimming. The bowling team captured the Section Nine championship. Both ski squads placed section in the Section 9 tournament.

Face Tough Hungarians

Kickers Play Home Sunday

MORGAN HILL

German-American Soccer Association contests between the Kingston Sport Club Kickers and the New York Hungarians have a way of producing volatile action on the battlefield.

It could be that way again Sunday, when the Hungarians invade Oehler's Mountain Lodge field, as the Kickers resume play after the winter hiatus.

One stormy confrontation at Oehler's resulted in a lengthy suspensoon of Elliott Pobbi-Asare, the fiery Ghanian in the famous incident of the "lost referee."

"We're not looking for any trouble Sunday," says Ingo Froehlich, the Sport Club's astute public relations director. "The game could be rough but we don't expect any incidents. They seldom happen when you anticipate them."

Froehlich said there would be several professionals in the Hungarian lineup.

"They have two truly great players in Fred Krivitz and Andrew Mate," he said. "Krivitz has been signed by the Kansas City franchise in the new North American Soccer League and is one of the finest in the country today. Mate was formerly a star with a Hamburg, Germany, Sport Verein, one of the most popular soccer teams in Europe."

The Kickers have only one more game remaining in the Major Division of GASA before the summer break. The league divisions will be reshuffled before the start of the 1970-71 campaign.

The Kickers, who are near the bottom of the Major loop at the moment, will probably return to the Premier Division, where they have a better chance to compete on even terms.

An important reason for buying Bonds when you're young is for when you're old.

Someday you're going to retire.

Let's hope you're ready.

Let's hope that you won't be living off your children.

Let's hope you'll have more to live on, and for, than Social Security.

Let's hope you'll be self-sufficient, able to grow old with dignity, respected by others and able to keep your own chin up.

Let's hope you're planning for tomorrow.

Regardless of the ups and downs of your other assets, you have to start with a nest egg, a kitty, something in the sock you can always depend on.

One way you can do this most painlessly is by participating in the Payroll Savings Plan where you work or the Bond-a-Month Plan where you bank.

U.S. Savings Bonds now pay 5% interest when held to maturity of 5 years, 10 months (4% the first year; thereafter 5.20% to maturity). That's the highest rate ever.

Let's not hope for a better tomorrow. Let's plan on it.

Bonds are safe. If lost, stolen, or destroyed, we replace them. When needed, they can be cashed at your bank. Tax may be deferred until redemption. And always remember, Bonds are a proud way to save.

Take stock in America.
With higher paying U.S. Savings Bonds.

Dear Abby

Plans on the Rocks

By Abigail Van Buren
(© 1970 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My fiancee, Debbie, is ready to call it off with me over a point that seems so trivial that it's unbelievable.

Debbie has always wanted to be married in the church her family has belonged to for generations. This was fine with me until about a year ago when the minister of this church (a man my fiancee greatly admires and respects) advised her to break up with me. She took his advice, and we didn't see each other for several months, but were miserable without each other and went back together again.

It took some real salesmanship on my part to get Debbie back, but soon after we became engaged.

Our relationship since then has been better than ever, except for one problem. I do not want to be married by that minister. I feel perfectly justified in feeling as I do.

I love this girl and don't want to lose her again, but I cannot see myself being married by a man who clearly disapproves of me. What do you say?

GEORGE

DEAR GEORGE: You're not marrying the minister. It's Debbie you want. If she insists on being married by that minister in the church to which her family has belonged for generations, it's understandable, so don't fight it. But remind Debbie that after the ceremony, her first loyalty is to YOU, and all others, including the minister, shall stay in the wings.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I work during the day and have only the evenings and week-ends to do my cleaning, cooking, washing and ironing, etc. (Thank goodness, no kids yet.)

My husband comes home, plops himself in front of the TV while I bring him his supper. (I eat alone in kitchen.)

I start to do some housework and he whines." So if I go watch TV with him, the next thing I know he is nagging me because I am always behind with my laundry and he is short on sox and shirts and underwear, and that the place always looks so sloppy he's ashamed to have any friends over.

I am getting sick of the whole routine. What do you suggest?

CONFUSED IN MAINE

DEAR CONFUSED: If your husband wants your company, why do you serve him in front of the TV and eat alone in the kitchen? Since you both work during the daytime, and you need your evenings to get your housework done, tell your husband that you will be glad to keep him company while he relaxes AFTER he helps you with some of your household chores.

DEAR ABBY: If Cinderella had been wearing the shoes that are fashionable today, Prince Charming would have laughed himself to death when he found her shoe. And I'm sure he wouldn't have gone looking for her.

I order my good looking, high heeled, pointy-toed shoes from a special store in Washington, D.C. I simply order a little larger size and I suffer less.

Today's hand may well be the best played of the year 1970. It certainly was the best played of the 840 board match between the Aces and the Circus.

Billy Eisenberg who sat South probably bid a trifle optimistically opposite a passed partner, but Bobby produced almost perfect cards for him and with a reasonable trump break the slam should have made fairly easily.

Billy ruffed East's ace of diamonds and led a club to dummy's ace. East discarded a diamond and Billy gave the hand some prolonged study.

The hand was being played on vugraph and one of the commentators who was looking at all the cards pointed out that Billy could make the hand by simply taking the heart finesse, cashing the ace of hearts and the ace and king of spades and then cross ruffing. A second commentator pointed out that West could defeat that line of play by ruffing in first with the nine of clubs and then with the jack of clubs in order to lead out his last club.

Meanwhile Billy continued to think and a third commentator then pointed out that Billy was going to make the hand by the simple expedient of taking both the heart and spade finesses although he would not try to cash the third spade.

Sure enough, Billy eventually did just that. He finessed his jack of spades, returned to dummy with the king, finessed his queen of hearts, cashed his ace of hearts and led a low heart.

West ruffed with the club nine. Billy overruffed with dummy's king, ruffed a third diamond and led another heart. West did the best he could by ruffing with the jack and leading out his last trump but Billy was still able to cross ruff for two more trump tricks and make the last trick with the ace of spades.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is certainly the day and evening to really live the Golden Rlue for almost everyone is being driven by the oncoming Full Moon to try to force others to do what they wish them to do. However, true cooperation can exist by taking a moment out to think over what other persons want and help them to obtain it.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Associates could be very annoyed with you if you try to force them to do what you like instead of using your energies more wisely. Find out what others expect. Then combine efforts intelligently.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are tempted to do those things that would not be wise today, so get busy helping those close to you. Analyze your true position today. Be careful of troublemakers.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have the opportunity to have an excellent time today, but do so inexpensively and wisely. Be with those who are loyal and really admire you. Keep away from that project that could cause financial losses.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get rid of that habit of lashing out at loved ones. Do whatever makes life more pleasant for them in the future. Find out and eliminate what it is that keeps you from progressing.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being too aggressive and antagonistic today could cause you trouble. Get out to services you like. Then show understanding and kindliness to all.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Plan how to have greater abundance in the future and how to increase your savings. Support some big person in business who has done you favors in the past. Gain more for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Somehow you feel that all is wrong around you now, but if you think positively, you find all works out just fine. Avoid that social affair later, or it could prove difficult because of some unreasonable person. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Think along the highest philosophical lines instead of going out for questionable fun today. Some friend you have needs your assistance, so be sure to give it. Avoid those who are greedy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't question pals who are usually very cheerful but now have worries on their mind, or they would resent it. Go after your specific aims but be diplomatic about them. Show that you are a wise person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan 20) Don't be tempted to go out with those persons you know are unreliable and could get you in a lot of trouble. Don't jeopardize your fine position in the outside world. Be charming with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show new contacts that you are a person of peace who knows how to keep out of serious arguments that lead to nothing. Listen to what clever persons have to say to help you become more successful. Follow best ideas.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Don't follow that intuitive hunch you have or you get in a lot of trouble. Rely more on your best judgment. Try not to work any angles of you find you are the loser. Think before you speak.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming people who is always thinking of others. Teach this child early to do nothing unless asked and to use his creative efforts to handle own affairs cleverly and become really successful. There is strong will power here. Personnel work would be fine since your progeny has a flair for helping others to find their rightful place in life. A college education is optional here. Religion is a must.

"The stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Tide Turning in Favor of TV

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The announcement that James Garner will appear in a one-hour prime-time series for NBC-TV in the 1971-72 season is a symbolic one for television.

For it was out of television—specifically, ABC-TV's satirical Western series, "Maverick"—that Garner came to become a movie star.

And now he is returning to the home tube, along with others who left for the movies, and also along with some big motion picture names who once felt it was a status (and financial) comedown to appear on video.

But the tide definitely has turned. Many film stars see not only greater security in a long-run television series as opposed to the uncertain condition of the movie industry, but also know the value of one-shot specials as video heads for new, profitable forms, including pay-TV and cassettes.

Thus we see that Dean Martin has contractually hitched his career to television for the long haul, using the home tube as his real home base.

Tony Curtis, too, has made the move to video, for in 1971 he will appear in a weekly ABC-TV one-hour series with Roger (The Saint) Moore. Their show, "The Friendly Persuaders," will be a light adventure series about a couple of fellows who try to bring justice to those bad guys who have escaped it.

Stewart Granger is another example. Next season he will start as a regular on NBC-TV's "The Virginian." Don Knotts, who left television and had success in movies, is coming back in the fall, to NBC-TV, as star of a variety series. Tony Randall also will turn up in the fall as a star of ABC-TV's "The Odd Couple" series.

in movies, will be on hand come September in a new ABC-TV situation comedy, "The Partridge Family," as a mother who travels with her children's rock 'n' roll group.

Hal Holbrook, whose stage and television versions of his one-man show about Mark Twain brought him stardom, will be a regular in NBC-TV's "The Bold Ones" as an altruistic politican.

And, as a capper, Elizabeth Taylor is scheduled to make her dramatic debut on television in an NBC-TV special next season. In fact, a trade paper reported from London the other day that Miss Taylor, her husband Richard Burton and actor Stanley Baker are forming a company to produce television dramas "in which one or more of the trio would appear."

Signs Point Toward Troop Withdrawal

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the signs pointing to another major withdrawal of U.S. troops, President Nixon makes his fourth broadcast to the nation Monday night on his effort to scale down U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

The President's address, delayed four days after troubles developed on the Apollo 13 space flight, will originate from the Western White House at San Clemente, Calif.

No time has been set for the so-called "update report" although the broadcast originally set Thursday had been scheduled for 9 p.m.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird a day earlier provided a posible tipoff to what the President will say, asserting in a speech at Ft. Riley, Kan., that Nixon "shortly will announce a further reduction in U.S. personnel in Vietnam."

"The return of the 1st Infantry Division from Vietnam to Ft. Riley will be followed in the months immediately ahead by redeployment of additional thousands of American troops as our Vietnamization program marches on," he said.

Vietnamization is the term the administration uses for its policy of replacing U.S. troops in Vietnam with South Vietnamese soldiers.

Speculation has put the troop withdrawal announcement at about 50,000 men. If so, this would bring the total number of troop withdrawals to 165,000. The authorized force level in South Vietnam now is 434,000 men after three withdrawals announced by Nixon.

There are also reports, not confirmed by the White House, that Nixon will talk about naming a new chief peace negotiator at the Paris peace talks to replace Henry Cabot Lodge, who resigned.

Nixon will go to San Clemente from Hawaii Sunday afternoon after honoring the astronauts and return to Washington Tuesday.

While Nixon is readying his Vietnam report, secret testimony on U.S. involvement in the war in Laos will be made public Monday.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., head of a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that took the testimony, said about 10 per cent of the factual information has been withheld by the State Department.

Release of the testimony climaxes a six-month battle between several senators and the administration over whether the transcript should be made public.

Fighting Intensifies Along Cambodian Border

SAIGON (UPI)—South Vietnamese troops in armored vehicles pushed up to 15 miles inside Cambodia in a large operation that overran a key Viet Cong base camp and killed or captured more than 400 guerrillas, military sources said today.

The four-day campaign, ignoring repeated American appeals against incursions into Cambodia, concluded Friday, the sources said.

South Vietnamese infantryman who took part in the secrecy-shrouded campaign told UPI correspondent Barney Seibert that government troops had driven as far as 15 miles into Cambodia. Members of a South Vietnamese ranger unit said they had fought up to nine miles inside the neutral nation.

Some South Vietnamese soldiers told of seeing American tanks and infantrymen also crossing the border. This was categorically denied by the U.S. Command. But one U.S. officer interviewed by Seibert at the border said some U.S. advisers to South Vietnamese units "may nave" crossed the border.

The South Vietnamese Command issued a communique today reporting 378 Communist troops killed and 37 captured in a four-day operation ending Friday in South Vietnam's Tay Ninh Province bordering the Parrot's Beak-Angel's Wing section of Cambodia.

Spokesmen said South Vietnamese forces seized more than 100 weapons, 80 tons of rice and two tons of medicine, and destroyed 170 houses. The South Vietnamese spokesmen insisted the operation had been conducted on the South Vietnamese side of the border. Government losses in the campaign were placed at eight killed and 67 wounded.

Relief and Gratitude Throughout the World

By United Press International

It was a rare example of world unity born of monumental relief and gratitude at the safe return Friday of U.S. Apollo 13 astronauts James Lovell, Fred Haise and Jack Swigert.

Vatican aides said the Pope had seldom looked so happy. When the parachutes blossomed on his television screen, the pontiff rose and prayed.

"He was overcome with emotion and joy," said Vatican sources. The Pope immediately sent President Nioxn "assurance of deep admiration . . ."

United Nations Secretary General Thant was among the first to send Nixon his congratulations.

"The entire world is thankful and all men will long marvel at the unmatched combination of technological skill, courage and indomitable spirit which alone could safely bring them back to earth's embrace."

Cheers went up along Parisian boulevards as the spacecraft flashed into view on television screens.

At the American Embassy in London, callers jammed the switchboard, congratulating the United States on the safe return of the astronauts.

"Most of the people were so emotional I just didn't know what to say to them," said a telephone operator.

Bulgarian television did not show the landing but reported it on radio. Hundreds of persons gathered in front of the U.S. Embassy to watch a series of placards telling of progress in the spacecraft's return.

In Beirut, roars of approval erupted from Arab cafes, jammed with people who heard the landing on transistor radios. In Tel Aviv, a radio commentator said, "As we say in English —'Only in America'!"

Iranians, many weeping and shouting, poured into the streets of downtown Tehran, when the news came.

O'Connor Will Star In Bracken's Show

At Hyde Park

In 1966, Esquire Magazine cited 42 people out of all the people in the world who could be considered worthy of the title of "unknockable." Eddie Bracken was one of those saluted.

EDDIE BRACKEN

It figured. Bracken is a "nice guy." But he is also one of the most versatile performers in the entertainment world. An entire generation remembers him as the star of many a memorable motion picture, numerous Broadway plays, and a wide variety of radio and TV programs.

Now Bracken is launching yet another career as a producer and owner of a new theatrical corporation, Eddie Bracken Ventures, Inc. And, luckily for us, he's doing it right here in the Mid-Hudson Valley.

Opening in June

Bracken recently purchased the Hyde Park Playhouse; plans to produce a new Broadway show there. It'll open on the Hyde Park stage in June; will star Donald O'Connor, the dancing comedian whose career has been an a par with Bracken's.

The teaming of the two movie greats should assure the success of the Hyde Park Playhouse, one of the most beautiful summer theatres anywhere. Located on Playhouse Lane in Hyde Park, the building went up in 1901; was originally used by tycoon Frederick Vanderbilt as a stable. Designed by the legendary architect, Stanford White, it is a charming example of the architecture of the turn of the century. The stables and stalls were retained when the building was converted to a theatre, and they add much to the Victorian charm of the Playhouse.

Bracken purchased the building for his new production compan. last November; announced this week that its establishment as a legitimate summer theatre will begin in June with the opening of a new play entitled "And the Girls Came Out to Play," starring O'Connor—and to be directed by Bracken himself. "Girls" will go to Broadway in the fall after debuting as the first offering of the Hyde Park Playhouse.

A native Long Islander, Bracken first appeared on the stage as the Purser in a local Knights of Columbus production of "The Good Ship Leviathan." The tiny trouper was only three years old, but he went from "Good Ship" to films, where he played the rich boy in several "Our Gang" comedies for Hal Roach. By the '30s he was appearing on Broadway (in "The Lottery" and "A Man On Stilts") and writing gags for Bob Hope's radio show at the same time. After playing Billy in "What A Life," he went on tour with that play in the role of Henry Aldrich. During that tour, he married his leading lady, Connie Nickerson. The Brackens now have five children.

A Paramount Star

Paramount Pictures signed him to a contract after his Broadway performance as Jo Jo Jorday in "Too Many Girls." In the next 12 years, he made more than 20 films, among them "Life With Henry," "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek," and "Hail the Conquering Hero." The war years saw him entertaining servicemen around the globe. After the war he returned to the stage; garnered

The Broadway show will be produced by Eddie Bracken, who recently purchased the Dutchess County theatre.

Clearwater to Potomac on Earth Day

THE CLEARWATER IN RONDOUT CREEK

Manned by an all-volunteer crew of Hudson Valley residents (including Kingston's own Dr. Charles A. Galyon as ship's surgeon), the Hudson River Sloop CLEARWATER set sail from Manhattan's South Street Seaport this week. She was bound for Washington, D.C. and the Environmental Teach-In there on Earth day, Aprill 22.

And just let us say this—in the spirit of 1776 and those years in between—she is making the journey to present a living "State of the Hudson" report in the nation's capital.

With a fresh coat of paint, extensive renovations, a new captain at the helm, and Dr. Galyon aboard with his black bag of bandaids and seasick pills, the authentic replica of a 19th century cargo sloop slipped gracefully out to sea on a journey that will take six days.

Polluted Plight

The voyage, CLEARWATER'S first this year, is aimed at focusing national attention on the Hudson's polluted plight. The crew and performers aboard will make a pitch to President Nixon and other governmental officials for federal assistance and controls to reclaim the nation's waterways.

THE CLEARWATER's route, with Capt. James Ostergard at the helm, was blueprinted from Manhattan to Cape May, down the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal to Chesapeake Bay, and up the Potomac, arriving in the capital next Tuesday, April 21 at 12 noon. Captain Ostergard, formerly of Massachusetts' famed Woods Hole Oceanographic Institute, will moor his vessel at Pier 4 of the Wilson Line Docks along Washington's Maine Avenue; welcome Washingtonians aboard for public inspection during a three-day visit.

What visitors will see will be a multi-media presentation, examining both the problems of the Hudson and the environmental crisis in general. The presentation will be performed by representatives of each section of the Hudson Valley as part of the Washington Teach-In program on the evening of Earth Day, April 22.

Among the performers: folksinger Pete Seeger, resident of nearby Beacon and chairman of the board of Hudson River Sloop Restoration, Inc., non-profit group that owns and operates the CLEARWATER.

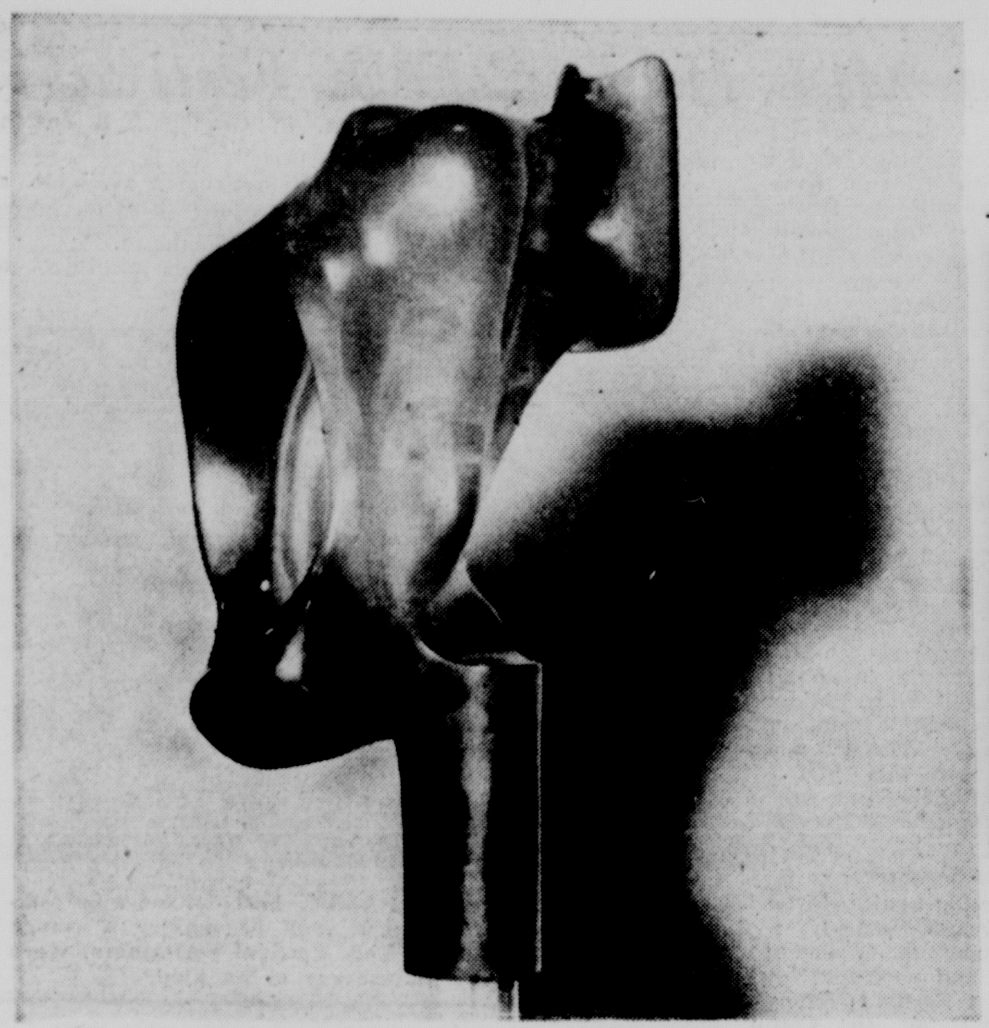

Taking the Message

Hudson Valley volunteers, in taking the CLEARWATER'S message to Washington, hope to attract a large number of state and federal officials to view the presentation on a day of national concern for the environment. Believing that our rivers cannot be cleaned and our resources reclaimed without federal funding and uniform control standards, they'll use their activities on the Hudson as an example of what concerned citizens can do to develop public awareness of critical environmental issues.

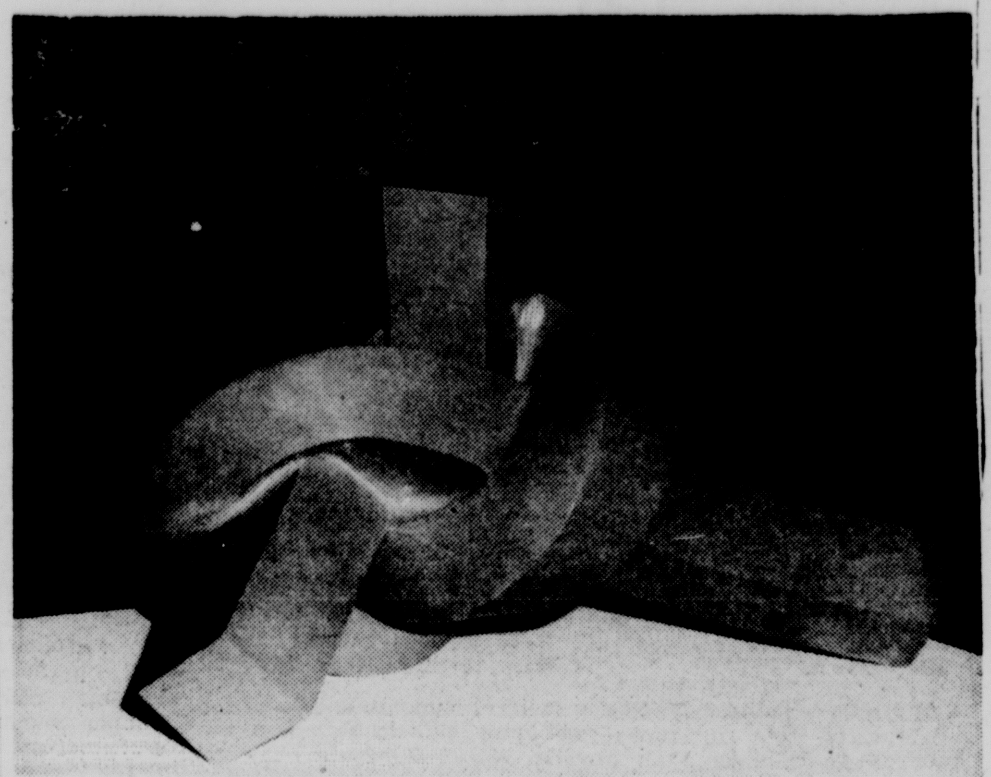

They are hopeful, too, that legislators are equally concerned

Exploring a New Medium in the Arts

LIKE AN EARLY BLOOMING spring flower, this student work in the new and highly specialized branch of plastics seems to blossom forth in petals of a different direction on its own. It is one of the three dimensional art works now on exhibit at the Art Gallery of the State University College at New Paltz.

KNOT #II is the title of this art piece, conceived for the Third Biennial Intercollegiate Exhibition of student art at the New Paltz campus. It shared first place in the judging, and won a top prize for its creator, Ted Alexander of Indiana University.

It's call PLASTICS and, once you've seen it, you'll be inclined to pronounce the word in capital letters with an exclamation point at the end for emphasis.

Because PLASTICS it is—and few exhibitions have ever explored in more depth this sometimes neglected area of three dimensional work. Comparatively new and highly specialized is this branch of art work. So it is that this particular show is virtually unprecedented.

It has a longer title for those who would prefer to use it. That would be The Third Intercollegiate Exhibition. But PLASTICS suits it best as it is now unfolding at the Art Gallery of the State University College, New Paltz.

A Different Direction

In the past, exhibitions of the type have devoted themselves to student work in painting and printmaking respectively. But this show, on view from now through May 2, takes a different direction. It concentrates on plastics alone; includes 33 pieces from 13 major colleges and universities throughout the U.S. That aone makes it the largest showing of student work in this medium to date.

Centered around the use of plastics as a medium of expression by the professional artist, the Paltz show is aimed at exploring and encouraging this idea on the part of art students in the nation's major art schools. And the students represented have proved that plastic can be an artistic, expressive medium, from the use of vacuum form molds, to cast liquid, to plexiglass and vinyl constructions.

Individual artists have achieved an artistic level of proficiency in this new and technical medium. Students from eight states in the east and midwest are exhibiting in the show, and the five prize awards winners already selected proved their talent in stiff competition.

Judging the Paltz show was Dennis Byng, professor of design at SUNY at Albany, who is now exhibiting his own work in plastics at New York City's Martha Jackson Gallery. Byng's choices: two Indiana University students, Ted Alexander for "Knot #II" and Andrea Ogle for an untitled piece, to share first place.

Paltz Has Winners

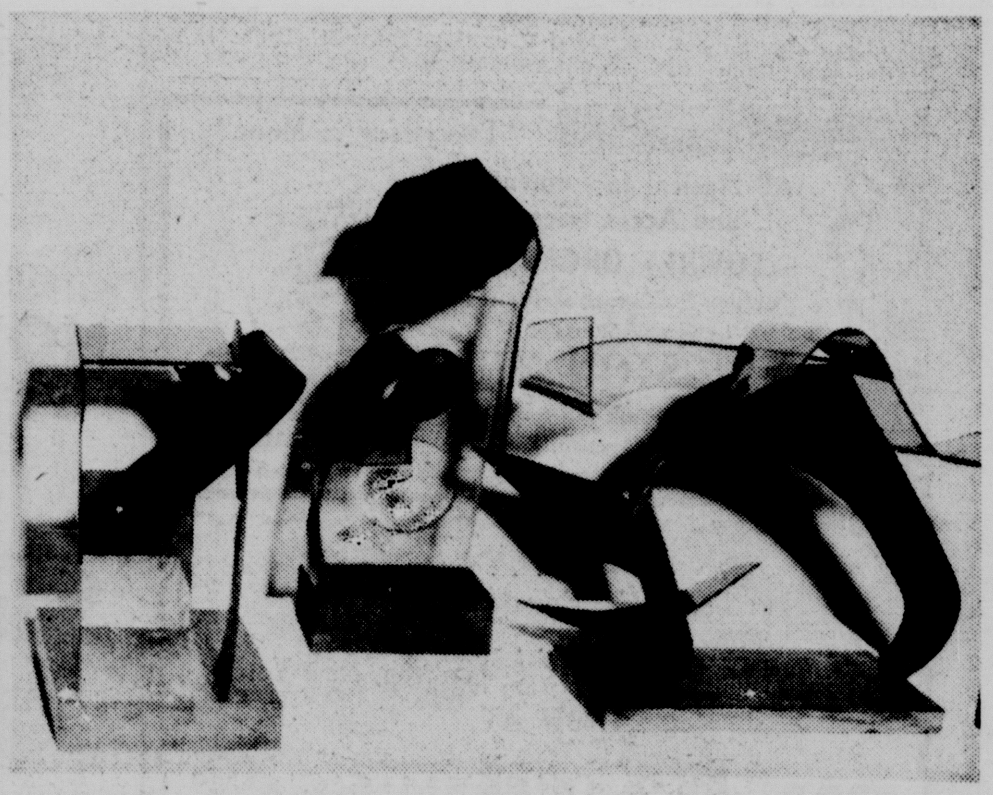

Four New Paltz students won honorable mentions for their work. They were: Peter T. Sheehan of New Paltz, George DeWitt of Oak Hill, Barbara Epstein of New York City, and Henry Cavanagh of New Paltz.

Second prize went to Peter Kwasniewski of Connecticut's Hartford Art School; third prize to John Caldwell and Elizabeth Clark, both of Boston's Museum of Fine Arts; and other honorable mention winners were Mary Didoardo, Remi Feingersh and Dana Collins, all of Brooklyn's Pratt Institute. Prize awards of $100, $75, $50, and two $25 honorable mention awards were given by the New Paltz Student Art Guild and the New Paltz chapter of Kappa Pi, honorary art fraternity.

PLASTICS is one of the most unusual shows to be offered in Ulster County this year. It proves that student talent abounds in this challenging medium; offers a cross-section of work from colleges in Connecticut, Indiana, Massachusetts, New York, Illinois, Michigan, South Carolina, and Kansas. Plan to see it if you are interested in things unique. Art gallery hours on the New Paltz campus are from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays, and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

PLASTICS WORK composed of eight fingers pointing skyward and balanced at a knuckle cut-off point made for a conversation piece between (L-R) Dave Holt; Peter T. Sheehan, graduate assistant in sculpture and co-chairman for the exhibition; and Henry Cavanagh, president of the Student Art Guild, and the other co-chairman who helped conceive and collect the show. Photo was taken at the opening reception.

TRIO OF ART WORKS in plastics illustrate other uses of plastics as a medium of expression by the professional artists. The New Paltz exhibit, now through May 2, is virtually unprecedented; consists of 33 plastics pieces from 13 schools. (Tempo cover and all other photos by Freeman Photographer Bob Haines).

Let Them Entertain You at Mid-Hudson Folk Festival

JEAN REDPATH, Scottish balladeer, will again charm folksong fans when she appears at the second Mid-Hudson Folk Festival on the picturesque OCCC campus at Middletown.

DAN SMITH, a fabulous harmonica man whose Negro spirituals and folk songs were the hit of the Newport Folk Festival, brings his mouth harp to Middletown May 3.

A pretty folksinger leading a lawnful of tots in tunes a hundred years older than any of them. A Scottish weaver spinning a ghost story for rapt listeners in the shadow of a giant maple tree. A black harmonica player stirring a jammed auditorium with songs of the Georgia turpentine farms.

These scenes will be recreated on Sunday, May 3, at the second Mid-Hudson Folk Festival on the attractive campus of Orange County Community College, Middletown. The all-day event will again feature participation programs for youngsters and an open sing for folk performers and groups.

The success of last year's pioneer festival encouraged the volunteer committee of OCCC faculty, students and local folk-singing buffs to try again, says Dr. Walter Gard, the chairman. Nearly 900 persons attended the two major concerts of the 1969 sing.

Good Times

"The performers had a good time, the audiences had a good time, and the music was good," Dr. Gard said. "Every performer promised to come back this year if we had another festival, so we decided to try."

Three important additions will be made to the 1970 festival's lineup of folksingers. Jean Redpath, a balladeer and humorist who has charmed folksong fans and critics since her arrival from County Fife, Scotland, nine years ago will sing at OCCC on May 3. Sarah Ogan Gunning, a songwriter and traditionalist who sings of the struggles of the Eastern Kentucky coalminers in the 1930's, will make her third public appearance since coming out of retirement for the Newport and Smithsonian Festivals.

Also, for youngsters of all ages at the early May Festival, John and Ginny Dildine of Washington, D.C. will stage musical shows featuring their 200 marionettes and papier mache masks during the afternoon activities.

They will join New York State's Sara Cleveland of Brant Lake whose memory includes more than 400 traditional, Irish and new folk songs; harmonica player and mission singer Dan Smith who left the South to make his home in White Plains; Grant Rogers of Walton, a Delaware Valley fiddler and musician for more than half a century; and fiddler-singer-yarn spinner Lawrence Older of Middle Grove.

Spinner-Songster

Also performing again will be Scotsman Norman Kennedy, a spinner-songster at Colonial Williamsburg and perennial hit at the Newport Festival; Sandy and Caroline Paton, the Connecticut husband-wife folk team who sing, collect and record folk tunes; and — if he can get away from his shipfitting duties on the sloop Clearwater — Briton Lou Killen who delighted last year's festival-goers with his sea chanteys, drinking songs and hornpipe airs.

"Changes" has been designated as the festival theme, but the day's program will be close to that of last year. Open air "play parties" for children — and workshops and seminars in ballads, taletelling, and plucked instruments will begin at 1 p.m. and precede a mid-afternoon open sing.

The featured concert of the 1970 festival will start at 7:30 p.m. in Orange Hall on the campus.

All-day tickets, available at the college, will be $1 for adults and free for children.

The festival is a project of the OCCC Lyceum Series.

SANDY AND CAROLINE PATON, husband-and-wife folk-singing team from Connecticut, will be making a return engagement as Mid-Hudson Folk Festival performers; were on hand at last year's first event of its kind.

U-Tri-C's Everyman

U-Tri-C Players, student drama club at Ulster County Community College, will give a performance of "Everyman," a morality play, during an Open House at the college's Stone Ridge campus on Sunday, April 26.

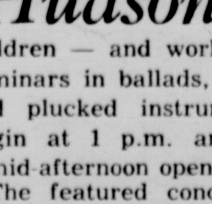

The play will be performed in the Student Lounge in the Algonquin Building starting at 2:15 p.m.

The 15th century play is one of the most famous morality plays and enjoyed a celebrated revival in the 1930's by Max Reinhardt. It is the story of how Everyman on his journey is abandoned by all but his Good Deeds, who alone will accompany him to the judgment seat of God and plead for him.

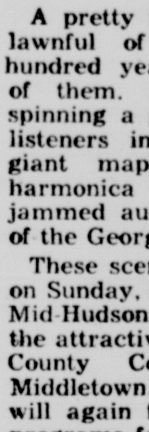

Countywide Cast

The cast includes: Everyman, Dan Hietzman, Kingston; Death, Karen Kleeger, Woodstock; God, Mike Devlin, New Paltz; Messenger, John Hanman, Kingston; Fellowship, James Manuel, Shady; Goods and Riches, Richard Friedlander, Kerhonkson; Good Deeds, Keith Christian, Kingston; Knowledge, Frank Valant, Kingston; and Confession, Dave Provenzano.

The play also will be presented in the Student Lounge at the college at 1:40 p.m. on Thursday, May 21. There is no admission charge.

CRAFTSMAN MATZDORF AT WORK

Matzdorf's Art Works Adjudged 'Pure Gold'

Only 130 handcrafted art works were tapped for the prestigious GOLDSMITH '70 exhibit, the National Craft Competition now on view through May 17 at the Minnesota Museum of Art in St. Paul. Among that relatively small number are craft pieces by Kurt J. Matzdorf of New Paltz.

The current show displays works executed in metal alone or in combination with other materials by contemporary craftsmen in the U.S. and Canada. It includes jewelry, holloware, flatware, and decorative accessories. In addition to being picked ts an exhibitor in the juried national craft competition, New Paltz artist Matzdorf was one of only two New York State artists whose work was purchased from the exhibition to enlarge the outstanding contemporary craft collection of the Minnesota Museum of Art. The museum made $8,000 worth of purchases from the show for its collection.

Artist Matzdorf's work was selected in highly competitive national competition by a jury of noted experts, including William Woolfenden of the Archives of American Art and metalsmiths Stanley Lechtzin and John Prip.

SNAG Conference

In conjunction with the GOLDSMITH '70 exhibition, the Society of North American Goldsmiths held its first international conference in the Minnesota Museum of Art. The SNAG conference included professional workshops, panel discussions, group meetings, and demonstrations.

New Paltz artist Matzdorf has long been recognized as one of the foremost goldsmiths and silversmiths in the country. His work has added much to the recent resurgence of interest in the crafts in the U.S. After the close of GOLDSMITH '70 in St. Paul in mid-May, the exhbition, including Matzdorf's work, will be shown at the Museum of Contemporary Crafts in New York City. When that show closes, a travelling show will go on national and international tour for two years.

Voight Cast

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jon Voight, an Oscar nominee for "Midnight Cowboy," will star in the title role of "The All-American Boy" at Warner Bros.

Choir and Glee Club in Requiem

The Vassar College Choir and the Yale University Glee Club, with orchestra and soloists, will present Mozart's Requiem in the Vassar chapel at 7:30 p.m., Sunday (April 19). The concert is open to the public at no charge.

Jameson Marvin, lecturer in music, is conductor of the Vassar Choir and the Yale Club is under the direction of Fenno Heath.

Marvin holds a B.A. in music theory-history from the University of California at Santa Barbara, an M.A. in choral conducting from Stanford University, and is completing his dissertation for the Doctor of Musical Arts degree in choral music from the University of Illinois. The concert is presented as partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree.

Before joining the Vassar faculty he was an instructor in music and conductor of the Glee Club at Lehigh University.

Marvin, acting director of the Vassar Choir this year while Prof. Donald M. Pearson is on leave, has been promoted to assistant professor of music and choir director as of July 1. Prof. Pearson will continue as Chapel organist and professor of music.

'Hot Dog' Scores

The recent NBC children's special, "Hot Dog," dealing with the origin of common, everyday items, will spin off into a half-hour weekly Saturday morning series in the Fall. Jonathan Winters, Woody Allen, Jo Anne Worley and the Youngbloods musical group will be on the program.

Record of the Year

The winner of the "record of the year" prize of the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences will be revealed in the annual "Grammy Awards Show" on NBC May 7. The five nominees, who will be featured on the program, are the 5th Dimension, Johnny Cash, Peggy Lee, Henry Mancini and Blood Sweat and Tears.

First, take a Renault 16 on a straight-away and see how fast it goes. Then drive it over some rough roads to see how a bump under one wheel won't affect the others. Find out what 4-wheel independent suspension means. Let front wheel drive pull you through some hairpin turns. And try out the front wheel disc brakes in a panic stop.

Do all this blindfolded and you'll swear you were riding in a car three times as expensive. However, we recommend that someone else drive.

The OUTSTANDING ATTRIBUTES of Ann-Margret and Bob Hope were teamed on "The Bob Hope Special," Bob's last show of the current season and one which marked his 20th anniversary in television. Also on tap for the show, which aired this week, were Phyllis Diller and Buddy Greco.

Hope Special Marks 20th TV Year

"I've been with NBC since they had a crystal set and the peacock was only an egg," says Bob Hope. "I sang on one and sat on the other."

On Monday, April 13, the irrepressible Mr. Hope celebrated his 20th year in television when "Chrysler Presents The Bob Hope Special" aired over NBC-TV from 9-10 p.m. Joining the celebration that night were Phyllis Diller, Buddy Greco, Ann-Margret (Hope says she rescrambles the eggs on a general's cap) and the Chrysler Spurrlows, who have been promoting safe driving through song and dance in high schools across the country.

Bob's first television show was aired on Easter Sunday twenty years ago. The show was telecast live from the New Amsterdam Roof in New York, and Bob's guest stars were Beatrice Lillie, Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Dinah Shore.

Jumpy Beginning

Remembering the first show, Bob says, "To my surprise, I was as nervous as a cat. I'd been in front of cameras and microphones for years, but I was as jumpy as if I were just starting out in show business."

In a way, he was. His fast delivery of one liners which had earned him the moniker "Rapid Robert" during his radio days did not work effectively on television.

"The truth is," Bob admits, "that when you're right in the room with those who watch you and listen to you, as you are in TV, practically sitting in their laps and muttering into their ears, your personality is more important than anything you can say. If you say something with a little hook on it—and it doesn't have to have much of a hook—you're home because it's the personality which counts. What I'm trying to put across is, whatever you say on TV, it's as much the way you say it as what you say.

"I honestly think that the secret of TV is being relaxed, casual and easy. I've slowed down for television, especially with my monologues."

Bob, who has been called NBC's "ultimate weapon" in the battle of ratings, is now one of television's most perennially popular performers. Yet Bob remembers with a smile that one critic wrote after seeing his first TV outing twenty years ago: "Comparatively speaking, TV is still a baby. But it doesn't need that much changing!"

'Goodbye, Mr. Chips' In Benefit Showing

Movie-goers who had been waiting impatiently for the critically acclaimed movie, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips," to come up the river from New York, had an opportunity to see it before it begins regular runs in the area.

The Poughkeepsie Area Vassar Club sponsored a one-time only benefit performance of "Mr. Chips" last week at the Imperial Theatre, Wappingers Falls. Proceeds went to the club's Ella McCaleb Scholarship Fund.

A totally enjoyable movie, "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" stars Peter O'Toole and Petula Clark. Based on the popular 1933 novel by James Hilton, the film received two Academy Award nominations: Peter O'Toole for "Best Actor" and another for "Best Musical Score." It's rated "G" for general audiences, putting it into the "family film" category.

The McCaleb Scholarship Fund the showing benefited was founded in 1931; has been responsible for sending more than 70 girls from the Poughkeepsie area to Vassar. Ella McCaleb, in whose honor the fund is named, graduated from Vassar in 1878; was the first dean of the college. Currently, 12 women students from the Poughkeepsie area are receiving aid from the club as a result of last year's fund raising activities. They include two seniors, four juniors and six freshmen.

Those Changing Seasons Along Hudson River

Scenes of West Point and the Mid-Hudson area are currently on display in the Mount Saint Mary College Library, Newburgh. The paintings are the work of Jean MacWilliams, wife of Colonel Donald J. MacWilliams, chairman of the Department of Chemistry at the United States Military Academy.

Currently a student under John Gould of the Bethlehem Art Gailery, Mrs. MacWilliams began painting at West Point 12 years ago. Her teacher was Herbert Abrams. She has continued her studies during tours at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas and Washington, D. C.

The current collection includes watercolors and oils of West Point scenes and the area near Washingtonville and Central Valley. Many of the paintings depict the changing seasons along the Hudson River.

Mrs. MacWilliams' exhibit may be viewed at the College Library, Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m.-9 p.m., Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., Saturdays and Sundays, 1-4 p.m. The public is invited.

A Bit of Hay Load History Recalls the L.I. Patriots

From the time of the earliest skirmishes of the Revolution, Long Island boasted more than its share of ardent patriots. And yet, little is heard about their efforts in the war.

The reason is simple. Long Island fell early into the hands of the British and was not liberated till well after the battle of Yorktown. The Declaration of Independence was adopted July 4, 1776, and a little over a month later the battle of Long Island took place. General George Washington was defeated and retreated to New York. Long Island became British territory.

Some men who had taken part in the battle returned home to look after their families. Many of those who were able moved their families to Connecticut. Others returned to service and left their wives and children in the care of older men.

Much Suffering

The residents who remained on the island under British rule suffered almost unendurable hardship. Their supplies and crops were not only commandeered by the British, but were also raided by patriots from Connecticut. The aged, sick and infirm were without medical help. But their suffering was unknown in the outside world.

In spite of this, the patriotic fervor of the Long Islanders remained undiminished. The strength and persuasiveness of their feeling can be shown through the following story.

General Sir William Erskine was Commander of the English forces on the east end of Long Island. By all accounts of that time, he was a fair man who tried to deal humanely with the Long Islanders.

When a British soldier was shot by a homeowner as he was about to break and enter, the General declared the vandal a disgrace to the troops and forgave the homeowner.

General Erskine became a friend of Doctor Samuel Buell, minister of East Hampton and a staunch American patriot. Through this association, Buell was able to do much for his people.

One day the two men met a boy riding a load of hay. Erskine teasingly called the lad a young rebel. The boy answered, "Ay sir, and proud of it!" The startled Erskine said, "Egad Doctor, even the children in America inhale liberty with the air they breathe."

Perhaps it was the air, but more likely it was the spirit of the Long Islanders that persuaded General Erskine to resign his commission before the war was over because of sympathy to the American cause.

Love Story Minus The Usual Slush

THE BAY OF NOON. By Shirley Hazzard. Atlantic-Little, Brown. $5.95.

The scene of this novel is Naples, its narrator is a young English woman named Jenny, its theme one of fractured love.

Jenny has left England because she realized her affection for her brother could lead to incest. She takes a job with an English mission to a base in Naples. Gradually she gets to know Gioconda, a fading Italian beauty, and Gioconda's lover Gianni, a film director from Rome. She also gets acquainted with a member of the mission, a Scot named Justin, who is shy of making any romantic attachments.

Miles A. Smith

ANOTHER IMPRESSIVE ROLE for Robert Redford, shown here with co-stars Katharine Ross and Susan Clark. This time around, he plays a sheriff in "Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here," the movie now being shown at the Orpheum in Saugerties.

JIM BROWN plays a black sheriff in a southern town in " . . . tick . . . tick . . . tick," now playing on a double bill at the 9-W Drive-In locally. The former all-time football great says the film is "the most significant picture on race relations that has yet to be made."

MOVIES

Tell Them Willie Boy Is Here

At the Orpheum Theatre in Saugerties currently is this unusual western drama starring Robert Redford, Katharine Ross, Robert Blake and Susan Clark. "Willie Boy" is the story of a young Indian whose search for romance and identity leads to murder, and sets off a man-hunt unparalleled in Western history.

Redford plays under-sheriff Cooper, assigned to bring to white man's justice Willie Boy (Robert Blake), guilty only of following tribal dictates. And, again, Redford shows he is one of filmdom's most versatile performers; gives a performance on a par with his recent roles in "Butch Cassidy and The Sundance Kid" and "Downhill Racer."

Blake, remembered as the aspirin-popping killer of "In Cold Blood," is fine as the young Paiute Indian who will not be tied to the Reservation, or consider himself less than a white man, in the America of 1902. Returning to his California tribe to claim his sweetheart, played by Miss Ross, who teamed earlier with Redford in "Cassidy" as his schoolteacher-mistress, Willie knows he's in for trouble. It arrives when he's forced to kill his sweetheart's father in self-defense.

The excitement mounts as the lovers flee across the desert, one step ahead of capture by sheriff Redford and a posse that includes a bigoted old Indian hunter (Barry Sullivan). Add the fact that the sheriff finds his sympathy for the Indian increasing and you have a highly dramatic ending. (Rated for adults and mature people.)

tick . . . tick . . . tick . . .

Now playing at Kingston's 9-W Drive-In is this film which stars Jim Brown as the first black sheriff of a Southern county. George Kennedy is the deposed sheriff and Fredric March is the traditional Southern mayor, dedicated but entirely unprepared for the political change in his town.

The script is meaningful and the settings are authentic. Well-paced and slickly directed, it's a sort of reversed "In the Heat of the Night." Jim Brown is no Sidney Poitier as an actor, but he shows improvement since he first switched from football to Hollywood.

The film grabbed us despite its Old-Confederacy cliches, and there's a slamgang fight scene in a poolroom that's a dilly. A dilly, too, is Fredric March as the crotchety mayor.

THE DIRTY DOZEN is the second feature at 9-W. Jim Brown's in that one, too, along with Lee Marvin, as two of a dozen U. S. soldiers in World War II set off on a mission to destroy a chalet where German officers relax and make merry.

JANE FONDA enters a 1930's marathon contest in "They Shoot Horses, Don't They?" Film's now showing at Poughkeepsie's Overlook Drive-In.

Midnight Cowboy

Held over for a second week at Kingston's Mayfair is this smash hit "Best Movie of the Year." Fresh-looking, splashy, sensitive, hilarious, sad, and with memorable performances by Jon Voight and Dustin Hoffman as loners and hustlers in Manhattan, it's totally brilliant. An excellent study of the gap between the glittering dream and reality. Fine supporting performances, beautiful score, exciting photography. A whale of a movie that dazzles the eye and strikes at the nerves. Very adult fare strictly, and children under 16 are not admitted.

John and Mary

Into its second week at Kingston's Community is this youth-oriented film that comes on as cool as possible to be as "now" as it can. It's a portrait of a very modern romance that interests mostly for its high scenic gloss and Dustin Hoffman's charm. Too contrived for our tastes, it manages to be squarer than it intended. Mia Farrow, whose "Rosemary's Baby" was a little devil, performs with all the joy of a department store dummy. Keep the kids and the younger teenagers home.

Other Choices

THEY SHOOT HORSES, DON'T THEY? At Poughkeepsie's Overlook Drive-In, this story of a 1932 dance marathon. A compelling and harrowing recreation of one of the most bizarre periods in U.S. social history. Gig Young, Jane Fonda and Susannah York are unforgettable and the mood and atmosphere will penetrate your bones. Parents should know there are two torchy sex scenes with no appeal for the kids.

ALL THE LOVING COUPLES. New Paltz Cinema is showing this slick sexploitation film. It's got its share of laughs and the sex play is done openly. It's a high-class example of the genre that involves wife-swapping as a Friday-night activity among the upper-middle class. Adults

"LAST HARBOR" of famous sidewheel steamer Ticonderoga, which once played a major role in New England transportation, is at enchanting Shelburne Museum.

Motion Revolution

Spring Weekend is the order of the season April 25 and 26 at Old Sturbridge Village, that center of living history at nearby Sturbridge, Mass. And, for those interested in area heritage, it offers an intriguing program titled "New England in Motion: Travel, Transportation and Change."

Principal modes of transportation in early 19th century New England will be highlighted by authorities in such historical fields as turnpike building, railroading, steam navigation, civil engineering, American literature and New England society. Experts will include a Harvard University historian, a Connecticut Historical Commission director, a Connecticut curator of prints, a director of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the research Librarian of Old Sturbridge Village, and the village's director of interpretation and education. Others will include an Amherst College professor, the Smithsonian Institution's curator of civil engineering, and the president of Old Sturbridge Village.

Attendance will be limited to 200 persons, so make your advance registration now if the program has particular appeal for you. Contact the Secretary of Special Events at the Village (telephone DIckens 7-3362). Reservations may also be made for dining arrangements at the Village Tavern. All Spring Weekend programs will be held in the Village Meetinghouse, and those planning to stay overnight should make their own reservations for lodging.

College Orchestra in Concert

Vassar College Orchestra, under the direction of Luis Garcia-Renart, lecturer in music, will give a concert Wednesday (April 22). The 8:30 p.m. concert in Skinner Hall is open to the public.

The program will include works of Mozart, Hindemith, Bach, and Sammartini. The edition used for the Sammartini work is taken from the complete Symphonies of Sammartini, edited by Betty Churgin, associate professor of music at Vassar.

Luis Garcia-Renart, who is also a member of the Bard College faculty, is first cellist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. He studied cello with Casals in Puerto Rico and France and with Rostropovich at the Moscow Conservatory under a special scholarship. He has won prizes in the Casals Inertnational Contests in Paris, Mexico and Israel and has appeared frequently in recitals as a cello and guitar soloist.

O'Connor Will Star

acclaim for roles in "The Seven Year Itch," "Teahouse of the August Moon," "Shinbone Alley," "Say Darling," "Finian's Rainbow," "Mr. Roberts," "Come Blow Your Horn," "Odd Couple," and "You Know I Can't Hear You When the Water's Running."

From films and Broadway to all major TV networks, Eddie Bracken has involved himself in virtually every aspect of the entertainment industry. Through his latest undertaking, Eddie Bracken Ventures, Inc., has has purchased several theatres in addition to Hyde Park.

But it is Hyde Park that will receive his personal attention this season. "And the Girls Came Out to Play" with O'Connor will have its world premiere at the Dutchess County Playhouse; will then tryout on the summer stock theatre circuit in other Bracken-owned theatres.

In the fall, Bracken will produce and direct O'Connor on Broadway in "Girls."

Our area should be served well by the versatile Bracken. The Hyde Park house was used as a resident summer stock theatre for several years. However, in recent years, it has mostly remained dark and idle while surviving several half-hearted attempts at revival, the most recent being last summer when a season-long pageant of the FDR story, "Sunrise at Campobello," made a not-too-successful stab at attracting audiences.

Deserves Success

The beautiful building deserves the success that has eluded it. Hopefully, the Bracken flair will assure its future. It certainly should since he has excellent plans for its use; will exert every effort to make it a cultural center for community activities and a legitimate summer theatre of high merit and repute.

Following the O'Connor show to the Hyde Park stage will be a complete line-up of Broadway offerings, with such noted stars as Ray Milland, James Whitmore, Pat O'Brien, Henry Morgan and Betty Grable.

From where we sit, it promises to be an exciting first season and the first in what will become a long succession of Broadway entertainment for our area.

This week, Bracken made a pre-season personal appearance as guest speaker at a special evening program at Hyde Park's Roosevelt High School. Appearing on behalf of the Hyde Park Chamber of Commerce and the Hyde Park Playhouse, he explained his plans for the O'Connor show; outlining the role the Playhouse will play in the future of community activities. It was an interesting and informative session that convinced his audience that Eddie Bracken's Hyde Park Playhouse will soon be as "unknockable" as its new owner (T.G.)

17TH CENTURY DUTCH PAINTING took as its theme this market scene. Currently on exhibit in the area is the most extensive display of such art ever shown in this country. The show by Dutch masters opened at Poughkeepsie's Vassar Art Gallery this week for a lengthy run through June 7.

Subtle Dutch Art Was Part & Parcel Of Social Struggle

The most extensive exhibition of late 16th and early 17th century Dutch art ever assembled in this country has opened at the Vassar Arts Gallery.

The show, entitled "Dutch Mannerism: Apogee and Epilogue," consists of approximately 115 paintings, drawings and prints by Dutch masters of a transitional period that is now receiving steadily increasing attention from artists and art historians.

The private opening this week was accompanied by a 25-minute performance of musical works of the period. Featured were the Vassar Madrigal Singers, under the direction of Prof. Albert J. van Ackere, and harpsichord selections by Prof. Earl W. Groves. The latter pieces were composed by Jan Sweelinck, whose brother, Gerrit Pietersz Sweelinck, is represented in the exhibition. The exhibit will be open to the public through June 7.

Many New to Public

The art works, many of which have never been published before, were contributed exclusively by American and Canadian private and public collectors.

The exhibit was assembled by Prof. Wolfgange Stechow, Mary Conover Mellon Professor of Art at Vassar who first studied these same Dutch artists forty-four years ago. His Vassar seminar students prepared the exhibit's catalogue entries.

The prinicpal artists represented were active in Haarlem and Utrecht, although a few worked in Amsterdam and The Hague. Their subtle, refined style had great appeal to the highly sophisticated connoisseurs of the period, and, as Prof. Stechow says, "It is impossible to attain the right perspective of this entire phase of Dutch art without realizing that it was part and parcel of the struggle to lift the social status of the Northern artist to the heights it had already reached in Italy..."

about these issues, and will turn out in large numbers on April 22 to hear what they have to say. Invitations to visit the CLEARWATER during her Washington visit and to attend a special April 22 program at the Sylvan Theater, have gone out to congressmen, senators, the Secretary of the Interior, and President Nixon. The crew will present gifts of books about the Hudson to the President and the mayor of Washington; has invited all federal officials and residents of the capital to visit the sloop during her stay.

The CLEARWATER, launched last year, was built to focus attention on the Hudson and stimulate concern for the river's future. Big and beautiful, long and full beamed, her 108 foot mast holds the world's largest mainsail, 2,910 square feet. Last year, this year, and every year, she sails the Hudson, offering programs of historical and environmental education in communities along the shores. In 1969, well over 250,000 people boarded the sloop during her many stops (including Kingston where she spent the winter) in the Hudson Valley and along the New England coast.

She'll be coming here again this year after taking Washington by storm.

will understand its humanisms and appreciate its excellent cast in spite of its subject matter, but leave the youngsters home with a baby sitter if you go.

IN SEARCH OF THE CASTAWAYS. Do, by all means, take the children around your house to this Walt Disney film at Catskill's Community Theatre. An entertaining adventure story, it's an exciting tale of drama, humor and suspense. Intrepid travelers (Hayley Mils, Maurice Chevalier and others) escape from a seemingly inescapable prison, only to find themselves fleeing from screaming Maori savages, an erupting forbidden mountain, and other problems.

THE PRIME OF MISS JEAN BRODIE and BUTCH CASSIDY AND THE SUNDANCE KID. Excellent double feature at the Hyde Park Drive-In. "Prime" has Maggie Smith in her magnificent "Best Actress of the Year" performance as a lonely schoolteacher in a British school. "Butch" is a hilarious western with Paul Newman and Robert Redford as bank and train robbers. (By TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

CAPTURED BY CANNIBALS: Hayley Mills faces this predicament in Walt Disney's Technicolor film, "In Search of the Castaways." Now playing at Catskill's Community Theatre, it also stars Maurice Chevalier and George Sanders.

Former Kingston mayor, Ed Radel and wife Bernice at recent St. Remy supper, were accompanied by pet poodle, Brandy, who was garbed for occasion in rhinestone necklace and Scotch plaid raingear. Ed and 'Nice take Brandy everywhere; poodle-sittin' fees are so doggone high!! . . . Understand Sgt. Dave Stewart — home on leave recently from Panama — was named "Operator of the Month" back at barracks. Nobody on home front was a bit surprised; buddies here claim he's ALWAYS been an "operator."

An observant clergyman eating at High Falls restaurant was both intrigued and crushed by exhibit of ancient letters — intrigued 'cause missives were so obviously relics-of-the-past, and crushed 'cause they listed (of all things) ZIP CODE NUMBERS?? . . . Last week one of the Freeman pressmen was forced to Halo his hair right-on-the-job (three times, at that); but Jimmy Lawrence should thank - his - lucky - stars those spilled ink wells were filled with black and not red ink. . . . Speakin' of newspaper, have you heard 'bout Freeman front page celebrity who was recently chased by a skunk? Always thought she had more "scents."

Montgomery Ward store manager Max Schoff chalked up cheers and praises to Mary Bolde, Helen Murphy, Alice VanVorst, retiring after combined 87 years of service, at buffet-party last Sunday in Oehler's Mountain Lodge. Highlight came when each woman received colored portrait of herself, painted by artist Charles Bryson. About 100 guests gathered to watch gals enter ranks-of-envied. . . . Current movies makin' it puzzling for viewers to know if they're comin' or goin'; playing simultaneously at Albany — Hello, Dolly! and Goodbye, Mr. Chips. . . . Speakin' of movies, now that screen star Mia Farrow has given birth, will new offspring call her "Mama Mia?" . . . As for Midnight Cowboy being "best movie of year," we'd sure hate to see the worst; guess it's just a question of keeping-an-open-mind or having-a-hole-in-one's-head!

With Earth Day (April 22) rounding the calendar corner and all the talk about ecology, author Robert Rodale in March issue of Prevention — magazine for better health — claims air pollution can't be ALL bad; one air pollutant is now damaging leaves of tobacco plants. (Glory, Glory, Alleluia.) Rodale suggests "next time you're near tobacco field, squirt a little extra car exhaust; that way you get even with 'nicotinites' who blow smoke in your eyes."

Another positive side-effect; pollution is poisoning pigeons—hardly man's favorite feathered friend. If pollution keeps up, city people won't have pigeon complaint . . . that is, if city people themselves don't konk out before the birds!

A Shakespeare Comedy Brightens Early May

Spring vacation's over and the drama department of Bennett College, Millbrook, has gone into rehearsal for its big spring production. Undertaking Shakespeare for the first time in some years, the department will present "A Midsummer Night's Dream" on May 7, 8, and 9. In addition to performances at 8 p. m. on each of the three days, there will be a matinee at 2 on Saturday, May 9.

Bennettt students will play the feminine roles with Mary Jane Foster, a senior drama major from Denver, Colo., cast as Puck and Cynthia Mitchell, a freshman from Herkimer, N. Y., as Titania. As is now customary at Bennett, professional actors have been chosen by director John (Mike) McElhaney, chairman of the Bennett drama department, for some of the leading men's roles.

However, the cast of 26 will also include a number of local men. J. William Nystrom, dean of Bennett, will play Philostrate and Theodore Katzoff of the Bennett drama department will be Egeus. Tom Hurley of Millbrook is to be the male attendant. The six rustics will be Henry Sparks of the Bennett drama department as Starveling; Carmine Di Arpino, former member of the Bennett faculty as Snout; William Smathers of the Dutchess School faculty as Flute; Dr. Harlan Howlett of Pleasant Valley as Snug; Eugene Fairbanks of Poughkeepsie and the John Jay High School faculty as Quince, and Charles A. Hoyt, chairman of the Bennett English department, as Bottom.

The play will be performed in 420-seat Harkaway Theater, Mellon Center for the Arts, and the public will be welcome at all performances. Reservations for tickets, for which there is no charge, will be accepted by telephone on or after April 29.

A Very Special Gift for a Special Open House

A limited number of poster prints of the original block print poster shown here will be distributed free to the public at an open House at Ulster County Community College's Stone Ridge campus on Sunday, April 26, 2-5 p.m. Executed by internationally known Woodstock artist Anton Refregier, the poster prints are of handmade Fabriano paper and are singed by the artist. They will be available in the Visual Arts Gallery, John Burroughs Science Building, at a Meet-the-Artists reception in the gallery during open House. Artists attending will be among those represented in the current "Artist as Draftsmean" exhibit in the campus gallery. They include Robert Angeloch, Jane Axel, Hannelore Baron, Frank Bowling, Edward Chavez, Richard Crist, Bruce Currie, Ruth Gikow and Jack Levine. Also: Ethel Magafan, Ruth Muroff, Barbara Neustadt, Anton Refregier, Andree Ruellan, Bernard Steffen, Nancy Summers, John Taylor and Emmanuel Viviano. Special exhibits and displays will also be featured in all buildings on campus during Open House hours. A marvelous opportunity, then, to tour UCCC, meet many of the area's top artists, and take home a beautiful free gift in the form of a collector's item.

At Dinner Theatre

Broadway Musical Hit With Raucous Parody

Wanna see a laugh riot? The pleasure is all yours currently at The Playhouse of the Four Seasons.

The unique Cornwall-on-Hudson dinner theatre is offering that Broadway musical hit, "The Apple Tree," as its big attraction now through May 2. "Tree" takes to the stage each Friday and Saturday evening at 8:45.

The first act of this three-part comedy entertainment is based on Mark Twain's story, "The Diary of Adam and Eve." The other two sketches were adapted from stories by cartoonist Jules Pfeiffer and author Frank R. Stockton. An enjoyable feature of "Tree's" three one-act musical sketches is seeing the lead actors perform as three completely different sets of characters.

Cast in Harris Role

New York actress Lucinda Wintringer, making her first appearance at the Cornwall Playhouse, appears in such diverse roles as Eve of Garden of Eden fame, Princess Barbara in "The Lady or the Tiger," and a chimney sweep who becomes a movie goddess in "Passionella." The roles were originally created by Barbara Harris on Broadway.

James Murphy, last seen on the Cornwall stage in "Christmas Carol," plays three unusual gentlemen, including Eden's Adam, Captain Sanjar, and Flip, the folk-rock hero in the Pfeiffer satire.

For reservations any Friday or Saturday from now through May 2, call (914) 534-8823. Your call will assure you an excellent dinner and seats to a hit musical acclaimed for its interplay between man and woman, and for its musical songs ranging from raucous parody to tender love ballads. You'll long remember Eve singing "Go To Sleep Whatever You Are" and Passionella crooning "A Movie Star."
